Worst Standing Army

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Universal, 1921

An aged peddler of Berkeley, Cal., told that he had inherited $1,000,000 from a relative, said only: "This puzzles me." Well it may, for as men get old they ought to realise that money is the least of things, except just enough of it to keep away absolute poverty that means slavery.

Many men now striving for their million will wonder, before they die, and perhaps after it, why they worked so hard for what can do them so little good.

It will help American manufacturers and workmen to take an interest in politics, the tariff and other public matters, to read this true story told by a man in business on a big scale:

"I wanted a supply of machinery laid down in New York city. German manufacturers offered to deliver it for $120 per unit. The best bid I got from an American was $480. Sixty per cent. duty would be added on the German price, which would make it cost f. o. b. New York $192 against $480, the American bid. What chance would the American have?"

Think it over.

London is worried by an epidemic of sleeping sickness, come to take the place of influenza. Great cities are as popular with germs as with young men from the country. Dr. Copeland warns New York and other big American cities that they also will have trouble unless they take every possible hygienic precaution, especially killing off rats.

Typhus has been found in New York city. Cholera has appeared in this country. Other infectious and contagious diseases threaten.

Dr. Copeland says a hundred thousand families with no houses, in New York, sleep crowded into the limited accommodations of a hundred thousand other families. In some cases "twelve persons live in three rooms. Four sleep in a kitchen every night."

Profiteering in building materials and the failure of mechanics to do a fair day's work for a fair day's pay, have produced these conditions. All classes will have to pay for them, including profiteers, to whose pleasant house on the hill disease creeps up from the slums, including workmen that stupidly thought they were helping their class when they took wages and did not earn them with good work.

Publishers of small newspapers, recently traveling a rocky road of worry, will hear cheerfully that the American Writing Paper Company has cut its price drastically and undoubtedly will cut more. The reason is: NO DEMAND. What goes up, as the sugar men found out, must come down. Sometimes it hits the ground pretty hard.

The most dangerous "standing army" is not the kind the Kaiser drilled, trained, taught to stand straight. That sort of army taking a million men away from production is bad enough.

But worse is the army of unemployed, the idle men that stand around and grow bitter.

We have in the United States a standing army of four millions and more now. It should not grow bigger.

We should consider ourselves on the road to disaster if we actually had an army of four million men producing nothing.

They at least would be trained, drilled and BUSY. The idle standing army is a menace.

The War Corporation, possessing power to finance business between Europe and the United States arranges a credit that will send abroad ten million dollars' worth of dried milk.

There couldn't be a better beginning. That will feed starving children there and help farmers here, on a basis of business, not charity.

French scientists announce that soon they will control the sex of children. NOT TRUE, probably.

Divine wisdom that created man understood thoroughly what a conceited little thing it created.

If men could control the sex of children the earth would be overridden with boys. What the earth needs is plenty of good girls to improve the breed. A few things men will not know until they show signs of improvement.

Control of sex in the unborn child is one of those things.

How to live without work is another.

Providence makes men and women about equal in number, a few extra women always. The same wisdom kills off the drones among human beings—as it teaches working bees to kill drones in the hive, after the queen has made her choice.

$18,000 IN RUMFOUND IN FOUR SACKS

Ninety cases of Scotch whiskey and brandy, conservatively valued at $18,000, together with two alleged liquor runners, were captured by prohibition enforcement agents at the point of a revolver near the Boynton freight yards, Union square, Somerville, today.

Two other men were arrested on suspicion later when they appeared at the freight yards, and more arrests are expected.

The whiskey runners in a big automobile loaded with expensive liquor, were arrested by Prohibition Supervisor William J. McCarthy and four assistants. Just as they were driving ... liquor, consisting of Hennessey Three-Star brandy and Auld Scotty Scotch, was shipped from Canada in three freight cars loaded with flour.

GERMANS AGREE TO CONFER ON INDEMNITY

Berlin, Feb. 4.—Germany has decided to participate in the indemnity conference which will open in London on February 28 to enable the German government to submit suggestions as to the method of payments, it was learned from a semi-official source today.

Despite press reports from London and Paris that the allies will refuse to reopen the question of the amount Germany is to pay, having fixed it at 226,000,000,000 gold marks, German industrial experts are busy preparing counter proposals. Dr. Walter Simons, the Foreign Minister, announced that Germany would present these counter proposals as the only basis of a solution.

From a former Cabinet member it was learned that the proposals which were prepared for the Spa conferences, but which were published because the allies refused to accept them as a basis of deliberation" are being broadened and will be presented by the Germans at London as "the

One Hundred in Customs Service in New York Facing Charges

New York, Feb. 4.—With charges preferred against some fifty inspectors and examiners of baggage at the port of New York and with as many to be accused of graft in passing dutiable goods, Byron Newton, collector of the port, said indictments would be pressed against all who failed to confess.

Newton said the scandal grew out of wealthy passengers giving tips of substantial size to the customs officials, and that later these officials came to demand fees of travelers.

He charged the situation as due to a "moral influenza" and laxity among customs officials at the docks.

Thousands of dollars in duties have been lost to the government he said. Some thirty-two inspectors have been suspended and six dismissed, Newton stated.

By International News Service.

London, Feb. 4.—Eighteen British soldiers and policemen were killed and thirteen wounded in clashes between Irish republicans and crown forces at Ballinehassit, Ballinalee, Balbriggan, Bessbrook, Dunlavan and New Pallas during the last thirty-six hours, according to an official casualty list issued by the Irish office today.

At New Pallas	9	2
At Balbriggan, Bessbrook and Dunlavan	4	1

Two police lorries were ambushed near New Pallas and obstacles were put upon the roadway. The first lorry was able to hurdle the obstructions on account of the high speed at which it was travelling. The second was brought to a standstill and fierce fighting ensued. The policemen were outnumbered, but fought bravely against heavy odds.

Dublin reported the British military authorities had received no confirmation of the news that six Sinn Feiners were killed in the battle near Rosscarberry Thursday morning.

IRISH SANK K-5, SAYS DISPATCH FROM DUBLIN

British Submarine Reported Sent Down by New Electrical War Device

New York, Feb. 4.—The British submarine K-5, which sank in the English Channel two weeks ago with a loss of fifty-six lives, was sent to the bottom by an "electrically controlled projectile" operated by the forces of the Irish Republic, according to a dispatch from Dublin and published in the Sinn Feiner, a local publication.

The device which sank the big British undersea boat 100 miles off Land's End was invented by an Irish engineer, the dispatch declares. The greatest secrecy surrounds the death-dealing instrument, which was only recently invented.

The sinking of the K-5 was the invention's first practical test, it was stated. The dispatch follows:

"Dublin—Ireland has struck her first blow against the British navy. On January 28 Irish sea craft operating near the spot where Archbishop Mannix was seized last year, sighted the enemy submarine K-5 and destroyed it. The submarine, one of the largest and most powerful of the British fleet, was blown to pieces.

MRS. J. T. GWATHMEY

When Mrs. Abigail Bishop brought suit against the banker for absolute divorce she named Mrs. Gwathmey. Bellhops and chambermaids testified. When Mrs. Bishop had secured her divorce she said that she considered it the duty of her husband to marry Mrs. Gwathmey.

It has been rumored during their few days that Mr. Gwathmey and Bishop were already married, but this was denied today. Bishop admitted, however, that he was having his home at Torrsdale, Pa., prepared for his bride-to-be.

COMPROMISE BY DE VALERA IS DOUBTED

Matthew Cummings Says Story, if True, Would Mean Repudiation by Irishmen

Matthew Cummings, former president of the A. O. H., and a leading worker in the cause of Irish freedom, declared today that if President Eamon De Valera offered to compromise with England for a dominion form of government for Ireland, as reported, he would be repudiated by all Irishmen here and abroad.

Mr. Cummings' statement was inspired by a Paris dispatch signed by C. F. Bertelli, Boston American correspondent, which appeared in the columns of this paper yesterday.

Mr. Cummings' statement follows:

"In answer to your request for an expression of opinion on the dispatch from Paris dated February 3 and signed by C. F. Bertelli, stating that President De Valera makes a definite statement to him, 'that the only compromise that would be acceptable to Ireland would be the granting to Ireland by England the same measure of independence which is given to India, Australia, Canada and all other British dominions; if Lloyd George will consent to this we will give up the republic idea and call off the war,' I would say:

"Although the dispatch is signed by a reputable correspondent, it seems incredible that President De Valera could have made such a statement. In the first place he has no authority to change the declaration of independence adopted by the Irish people by an overwhelming majority at the election of 1918 without a mandate from the people who elected him.

"Patrick Pearse and his followers first raised the flag of the Irish Republic Easter week, 1916. They wrote the Irish declaration of independence and sealed it with their life's blood, as every man who signed it was stood against a stone wall and shot by orders of the English government. Ireland has never relinquished her right to nationhood. During the war when England tried to conscript the men of Ireland, it was resented as an insult to the Irish nation, and England didn't dare enforce the conscription act.

"President De Valera was elected President of the Irish Republic and not Premier of a British dominion. If the so-called compromise was agreed to, Ireland would become a British dominion and would lose all claim to nationhood. The republic that Patrick Pearse died to establish and that Terence MacSwiney died to preserve would be deserted by its leaders for an empty, meaningless promise. And history proves that every promise made in the past by English rulers to Irish leaders was only made to be broken.

"It took seven long years of war to win independence for this republic. The Irish Republican army in the field under the splendid leadership of Michael Collins is giving a good account of itself and is giving back blow for blow. In her desperation England is making war on women and children in order to terrorize and exterminate the people. How long will the civilized world stand for this, and how long will America stand idly by while women and children are murdered and starved by the armed forces of Britain?

"It is too late now for compromise. The people of Ireland have suffered too much to be deserted now, and any leader who lowers the flag of the ancient Irish nation and hoists in its stead the flag of a British dominion will be repudiated at once by the Irish race at home and abroad. I sincerely hope the dispatch is a fabrication and that liberty-loving Americans will demand of our government the recognition of the Irish Republic, as liberty cannot be strangled in Ireland and live long in America."

De Valera's Reported Offer of Barter Doubted by Harrigan

John F. Harrigan of Worcester, Massachusetts State president of the American Association for the Recognition of the Irish Republic, last night issued a formal statement in which he took exception to a cabled report from Paris attributing to Eamon De Valera the statement that Ireland would barter her established Irish Republic for dominion home rule. State President Harrigan, who was a close friend of De Valera during the Irish President's stay in the United States, said:

"The Irish people do not, after the fashion of Lloyd George, through their representatives, say one thing one day and another thing the next.

"The President of the Irish Republic has definitely stated that the Irish nation will not treat with England except on the basis of one distinct and individual nation treating with another."

IRISH MASS MEETING SUNDAY IN ROXBURY

The meeting will be held under the auspices of the various Roxbury divisions of the A. O. H., namely Divisions 9, 17, 19, 39, 41, 50 and 71.

It is expected that Emmet O'Toole, the Irish tenor and soldier of the Irish Republic army, will sing patriotic songs and tell some of his own experiences. Mayor Morgan of Thurles, Ireland, ex-Mayor Curley and County President Martin J. Smith will also speak. Theodore A. Glynn, president of Division 17, will preside.

Carr, President of Division 50; John Rockford, President of Division 41; John Sutherland, President of Division 50; Michael Dillon, President of Division 71.

GERMANS WILL ATTEND NEW CONFERENCE

Prepare Counter Proposals in Indemnity to Be Submitted to Allies in London groundwork for further discussions."

Under Secretary of State Charles Bergmann, the German commissioner in Paris who has returned to Berlin, is co-operating with the industrial experts in the expansion of the Spa proposals. As word has been received here that the economic conference, which was to have been resumed at Brussels next Monday, has been postponed, the Germans will have time to concentrate all their attention upon the suggestions which will be put forward at London.

WARNS OF REVOLT.

A warning that revolutionary disturbances may break out in Germany if the allies insist in imposing the sum of indemnity agreed upon by the Supreme Council at Paris, was sounded by Minister of Labor Heinrich Brauns.

"The allies are playing into the hands of the Communists," declared Herr Brauns. "As exhausted as we are by war and surrounded by political dangers from the extremists we have not the resistance to withstand much of an increase in unemployment. And it is certain that the 13 per cent. export tax proposed by the allies would increase German unemployment.

"Perhaps the unemployment of 2,000,000 men in the United States is not felt much, but our reserve is worn out. Unemployment is the chief weapon of the Communists. Food costs have increased ten and eleven times, whereas wages have increased only six or seven times. I do not hesitate to say that if a nattempt is made to fulfill the Paris terms it will result in revolutionary disturbances."

Former Chancellor Philip Scheidemann, majority Socialist leader, in an interview with the International News Service attacked the indemnity terms, saying that they would precipitate a crisis.

"The statesmen responsible for the decisions proved their inability to comprehend and solve problems of an international character because they were actuated entirely by local politics," said Herr Scheidemann. "That goes for Premier Briand and also for Premier Lloyd George.

"English newspapers declare that the carrying out of the Paris terms will increase the unemployment crisis in England. This applies to the United States also. I resigned the chancellorship in June, 1919, because I considered it dishonorable to agree to impossible obligations. Now we face a similar situation.

SOCIALISTS BACK SIMONS.

"Therefore, we support Dr. Simons' counter proposals. The German labor party is determined to do everything possible within reason to heal the wounds caused by the war. We are prepared to rebuild Northern France and Belgium with our own means and our own labor.

"But little or no progress has been made in the reconstruction of ravaged France is entirely the fault of the French government, which did not respond to the definite proposals made by Germany when the Socialists controlled the government. M. Loubaud, leader of the French labor unions, recently brought up this question and proved our contention.

"Social Democrats demand fulfillment of the disarmament proposals, although this would be the merest mockery if France, armed to the teeth, continues to declare that Germany is a danger.

"The only militarism today is in France; the only war threats today come from France. Because the Paris decisions threaten the German working class we are going to support the government unanimously in this matter."

Calls Whistling in Church Irreligious

Whistling hymns in church instead of singing them is bad manners and poor religion, according to Everett ministers.

The whistling of hymns was initiated by a Portland, Me., minister, who discovered that many of his male parishioners were silent during the hymns because they could not sing. So he invited them to whistle, and led them.

Rev. Judson A. Hughes of the First Baptist Church of Everett said such concessions to popularity were the results of a wave of irreverence and irreligion.

Rev. J. L. Stevens of the First Methodist Church declared the idea had no permanent religious value and tended to ruin the sacred character of a church service.

and a portion of the stock had been loaded into the automobile.

The men under arrest gave their names and addresses as Maurice Levine, No. 424 Albany street, Boston, and William Stanton, No. 27 Bainbridge street, Roxbury. They are locked up at the Somerville police station charged with illegally transporting liquor.

The two men arrested on suspicion gave names and addresses as follows: Gregor Dumont, No. 849 Beacon street, and Alec Chodes, No. 255 Colonial avenue, Montreal. On their persons were found four suits of overalls and four caps, a bottle of Canadian Club whiskey and a Canadian passport.

It was intimated that the Lake street merchant to whom the flour was consigned was also under arrest, but he was not booked at Somerville station.

SCUFFLE PRECEDES ARREST.

McCarthy and his assistants arrived on the scene just as the big touring car containing the two men under arrest and loaded down with twenty-five cases of liquor was leaving the vicinity of the freight yard.

The chauffeur of the liquor officers' car blocked the road in front of the other machine and McCarthy, revolver in hand leaped on the running board of the car containing the whiskey and called upon Levine and Stanton to surrender. There was a brief scuffle before the two men were captured. They were then taken to the Somerville police station.

The liquor in the auto, which had been removed from the freight cars, was concealed in flour sacks, whole cases being in two bushel sacks and numerous individual bottles in one bushel sacks.

After the men were locked up the officers returned to the yard and searched three freight cars. They discovered the remainder of the hidden liquor on the ground, nine cases in all, covered with a heavy tarpaulin.

The flour in the cars is alleged to have been consigned to a Somerville business man who was brought to the police station and questioned by the officers regarding his knowledge of the contents of the cars. His name was withheld by McCarthy.

It is believed by McCarthy that there are three other freight cars containing liquor from Canada in some other freight yard near Boston, and the prohibition officers are hunting for them.

DEATHS IN BOSTON FROM SLEEPING SICKNESS NOW TOTAL SIX

LADY, SPREAD BY GERMS, PUZZLES PHYSICIANS

Another death from "sleeping sickness" and two new cases were reported to the Boston Board of Health today.

Because of the alarming spread of the baffling disease City Health Commissioner William C. Woodward has written to State Health Commissioner Eugene R. Hollis asking that it be made a reportable disease.

The latest victim of the dread malady was Harold F. Judd, twenty-one, single, of No. 71 Robbins street, Waltham. He died in a Boston hospital after six days' illness.

The two new cases reported to the city health board are being treated at Boston City Hospital. One of the stricken persons is a resident of this city and the other is a non-resident.

Lowell also reported one death today.

Leading medical authorities today admitted the strange disease, the most popular professional term for which is "lethargo encephalitis," but which has more aliases than an habitual criminal, is contagious and communicated by a germ.

GERM ELUDES EXPERTS.

The germ has succeeded to date in eluding the most skilled bacteriologists. Nothing appears in medical records to show that the "bug" that produces protracted slumber and death, has ever been sufficiently identified to be tagged and photographed. A New York physician claimed recently that the encephalitis bacilli has been snared and is under observation at Rockefeller Institute, but Boston doctors doubted this today.

To date fifteen cases have been reported to the Boston Health Department since January 1 and six have proved fatal. Two new cases were reported yesterday, both residents of Boston. One patient is a woman fifty years of age and the other a man of sixty-three.

James Levy, thirty-eight, of No. 753 Arlington street, Chelsea, died February 1. The other victims who died in Boston hospitals since the New Year were: Nicholas Spadafora, thirty-one, No. 21 Courtland street, Everett; died January 19; Angelo Cattalio, thirty-three, No. 30 Snow Hill street, North End, died January 16; Edna L. Daley, twenty-three, No. 142 Bradford street, Everett, died January 25; Jennie Celeste, thirty-seven, No. 191 Porter street, East Boston, died January 25.

Records in New England show that in March and April of 1919 the disease broke out in isolated cases in widely-scattered communities. Reginald Sinclair, aged four, of Stockholm, Me., died in April, 1919 at Central Maine Tuberculosis Sanitarium, Fairfield, Me.

KNOWN AS "SLEEPING GIRL."

Miss Fannie Greenis, twenty-two, of No. 18 Lowell street, West End, was found unconscious in Harvard square and was treated for days in a Cambridge hospital. She recovered and was again stricken, but recovered. She was known as the "sleeping girl."

Some physician thinks that her case was more indicative of "self-hynotism" than encephalitis. But it interested the profession tremendously.

The most eminent specialists differ as to the origin of the disease. Experts in New York and Chicago couple it with influenza, and quote statistics to show that the severest outbreaks of the sleeping malady followed epidemics of "flue." Boston specialists differed from this view. Dr. T. L. Stedman of New York, editor of the Medical Record, claims the sleeping sickness is a come due to influenza of the brain.

Dissension by local physicians today emphasized that the tsetse fly, which has long been blamed for the malady, had a perfect alibi.

Dr. William C. Woodward, commissioner of public health in Boston, said today:

"I don't think the sleeping sickness has anything to do with Influenza. Like other diseases it simply happens that they may come together, like measles and whooping cough and scarlet fever.

"There is no longer any doubt that lethargo encephalitis is caused by a germ and that it is contagious, though not malignantly so, as the isolated nature of the cases proves.

NO DANGER OF EPIDEMIC.

"While there may have been a slight increase, there is absolutely no indication or danger of an epidemic. It is extremely difficult, however, to ascertain the exact number of cases locally or in the State, because reporting such cases is not compulsory. It would be wise to make it compulsory for the public good. I am making a suggestion to Boston physicians along this line.

"I do this, not for the purpose of quarantine, but to get all the light and information possible on a disease, that is still baffling the medical world. So far as I know the germ has not yet been discovered, though medical men are satisfied that the malady is caused by bacilli.

"The latest theory I have seen advanced is that the attacks of hiccoughs reported in different localities may have some relation, distant or remote, to encephalitis, but I fancy that is a mere theory. It has been suggested that the hook worm disease, peculiar to the South, may be related, but it isn't. The hook worm is a tiny organism that infests its victims between the toes, works up to his lungs, is coughed into the intestines and thus attacks the entire body. The encephalitis bacilli is altogether different.

EARLY SYMPTOMS.

"The early symptoms are general lassitude, headache, drooping eyelids, pains in the limbs, tremor, increasing drowsiness, coma and paralysis. It is not always fatal. Arsenical treatment is the most popular antidote. As in all contagious diseases depleted bodies and nerves and worry will make one more susceptible.

"Not being acquainted with the organism and habits of the germ, it is difficult to instruct the people of Boston how to guard against the sleeping sickness. I advocate rules that are elementary in all infectious diseases, regular habits, plenty of sleep, good, clean, wholesome food, and care in not using cups, glasses, spoons, or forks used by others, unless scalded."

Sleeping Plague Victim Dies in Lowell

Lowell, Feb. 4.—Following four weeks of almost continuous sleep, Mrs. Hanna Robertson of Williamsport, Pa., is dead at St. John's Hospital, this city. Mrs. Robertson was stricken four weeks ago with pains in her arms and legs and a sleepy feeling. Dr. R. J. Smith diagnosed her troubles as sleeping sickness and sent her to the hospital at once.

Dr. Channing Cuthingham of Peter Bent Brigham Hospital came to Lowell and confirmed Dr. Smith's diagnosis. Mrs. Robertson slept save when the nurses awakened her to give her liquid food. Consciousness after partaking of the food she fell asleep again.

A peculiarity of her sickness was the fact that when awake she had double vision and also said she saw in her room persons who were known to be thousands of miles away at the time. Her husband and a sister who is in Williamsport survive her.

U. S. FIRE LOSS IN BRICK BUILDINGS $300,000,000

New York, Feb. 4.—Fire in brick buildings or structures other than wood causes an annual loss of $300,000,000 in the United States, according to Ira H. Woolson, consulting engineer of the Fire Underwriters' Laboratories here. He told the National Brick Manufacturers' Association at their national convention here. Imperfectly constructed chimneys caused $70,000,000 of this loss, he stated.

ADVERSE REPORT ON NEW HAVEN HARBOR

Washington, Feb. 4.—Improvement to the New Haven, Ct., Harbor, sought by local interests, were objected to by the Rivers and Harbors engineers in a report submitted to the House. It is claimed by the engineers that present conditions as to trade and commerce at the New Haven port do not justify the expenditure.

Tells How to Prevent Sleeping Sickness

Have plenty of exercise.
Get all the sunlight and air possible.
Good ventilation in homes and working places, and especially in sleeping apartments.
And I advocate sleep, plenty of wholesome sleep, to fight the sleeping sickness.
Nothing builds up the body and health like sleep and wise eating.
Bathe frequently.
Be sanitary.
Live and think clean.

Do You Hiccough? Here Are 3 Simple Cures

Dr. H. A. Donnell of the Hotel Braemore, Commonwealth avenue, demonstrating one of the effective methods of checking hiccoughs. Relief is obtained by exerting firm pressure of the fingers of both hands under floating ribs reaching diaphragm.

Another satisfactory method of routing the hiccough, says Dr. Donnell, is to press just beneath the eyebrows of the patient while she holds her breath, as illustrated above. In the photograph below the physician shows the French method of obtaining instant relief from the ailment. This treatment is simply pressing the index finger firmly on the fifth cervicular nerve of the patient.

GRACE FISHER SAYS HUSBAND IS TOO LOVING

Former Opera Company Member Declares Dr. Reeve Is Won by Pretty Faces

Music lovers of Greater Boston are much interested in the legal battle in progress in the Probate Court, between Mrs. Grace Fisher Reeve, who, as Grace Fisher, was a favorite member of the Boston Opera Company twelve years ago, and Dr. Oscar C. Reeve, her husband.

Mrs. Reeve is seeking custody of their eight-year-old daughter Delora. whom the doctor took away when he left her last July.

She charges that he is too readily impressed by a pretty face and is not a fit guardian of his daughter.

Hearing out her claim, witnesses one after another told on the witness stand of surprising the physician kissing or hugging strange young women in the hall or even in secluded corners in his own home.

Mrs. Elizabeth Mattox, a sleuth of the former opera star, was one of the witnesses who told stories of the kind. She said when she visited his home she shoved her against the wall and kissed her and only her screams stopped him. She did not tell her sister then, because she disliked to interfere with her illusions concerning him.

Mrs. Margaret Moore told of seeing Dr. Reeve, who is one of the leading physicians of the State, sitting "very close" to young women on Morningside Drive, New York, and on the Columbia University Campus. He "supposed" he was making love to them.

Miss Margaret Strong of Manhattan testified that the former Boston singer was a devoted mother and wife, while her husband was constantly being discovered in embarrassing situations with young women.

In her own behalf, Mrs. Reeve declared that she had left the stage for love of her child and home life. She was introduced to the operatic world by Lillian Nordica.

Mrs. Reeve told of two wild trips across the country in an effort to get control of her daughter, and of being tricked by her husband into going at the right place at the wrong time.

On the other hand, a colored maid testified that both Mrs. Reeve and the eight-year-old Delora were very temperamental.

She had heard the mother refer to the child as a "brat" and a "little devil" and threaten to shoot her husband.

She said the little girl realigated by promising to behave in such a manner as to make her mother a nervous wreck.

CARDINAL GIVES CHURCH RULES FOR LENT

Little Change Over Last Year for 1921 Season Beginning Wednesday

Cardinal O'Connell today issued the archdiocesan regulations for Lent, which begins next Wednesday. There is little change in the rules for the archdiocese Sunday, are as follows:

Those for 1921, which will be read in all Catholic churches in the archdiocese Sunday, are as follows:

1. All the days of Lent, except Sundays, are fast days. The custom of fast ends at noon on Holy Saturday.

2. All between the ages of twenty-one and fifty-nine are obliged to fast, except the sick and convalescent; women in delicate health and condition; those to whom fasting would cause grave injury to health, or would produce such illness or exhaustion as would interfere with their daily duties, and those whose occupations are of a very laborious and exhausting nature. Those who doubt whether they are excused or not should consult their confessor.

3. Those obliged to fast are allowed but one full meal, either at noon or in the evening.

4. During Lent every Wednesday and Friday, and the second Saturday are days of abstinence. However, by special privilege of the Holy See, working people and their families are obliged to abstain from meat only on Ash Wednesday and Fridays. On all other days of abstinence those of the family who are obliged to fast may eat meat at their principal meal; those not obliged to fast may eat meat any of their meals.

5. The use of meat and fish at the same meal is no longer forbidden.

6. Those who are excused from fasting or abstinence during Lent should practice self-denial in some other way.

7. The usual Lenten devotions will be provided in all the churches of the Diocese, and the faithful should endeavor by earnest prayer, heartfelt contrition and the worthy receiving of the Sacraments to profit by the special graces of the Holy Season.

8. The time for complying with the precept of Paschal Communion extends as heretofore, from the first Sunday of Lent to Trinity Sunday.

CLAIM DAWES IS OFF CABINET SLATE

Opinion of Men Close to President-Elect; Harding Trip Delayed

By International News Service.

Palm Beach, Fla., Feb. 4.—No comment regarding the recent declaration of Charles G. Dawes, that he is not in politics and was not going in, was forthcoming today from the boisterous Victoria with President-elect Harding aboard. Men in close touch with the President-elect, however, declared the Chicago banker economist would prefer the treasury post to any other cabinet position and he may yet be the man selected.

Mr. Harding was a striking figure today as, with deeply tanned face, springy step and radiating health and energy, he strode through the veranda lounges of this Winter playground. Even the society photographers, usually alert for an unusual frock or a society luminary, turned a condescending lens in the direction of the President-elect.

VICTIM OF SANDBARS.

The next President arrived here in the middle of the morning, after having covered only sixty-six miles in the last two days. The Victoria was again the victim of sandbars, low water and obstructing dredges in the Indian River. The party was aground for several hours yesterday afternoon. J. Leonard Replogle of New York went to the rescue with his power yacht Sea King, and after dragging the Victoria off into deep water piloted her to a berth in Lake Worth, ten miles off Palm Beach, for the night.

Mr. Harding played a round of golf on the Country Club course here this morning, and expected to leave afterward for his journey North.

DAY BEHIND SCHEDULE.

He is now a full day behind his schedule and must press on without delay if he is to reach St. Augustine by Monday morning. It is possible a part of the journey may be made by automobile or train.

The slow progress yesterday was enlivened by trolling for tarpon, but without success. This was a bitter disappointment to the loyal Floridans gathered along the shores and on the bridges.

One enthusiast who saw the equipment used by the President-elect, declared the ill luck was due to the use of a "Wilson" spoon, a favorite lure in these waters. Another declared he had also appointed at the scarcity of fish, declared mournfully that any celebration the President-elect might have had plus elephants rolling on the beach to greet him.

This will mean the starting of 100 new looms and employment for approximately 150 workers. The night employes will be paid wages sixteen and a half cents an hour over day rates. SUBSTITUTE PACKERS' BILL IS REPORTED

Washington, Feb. 4.—The Haugen bill, substituted for the Gronna "KK" bill, providing for regulation of the packers, was favorably reported by the Agriculture Committee of the House. Representative Wilson, Republican, of Illinois, was the only member of the committee opposing the bill. The Haugen bill puts the packers under the Secretary of Agriculture and the livestock men under the Interstate Commerce Commission in the enforcement of regulatory and control provisions of the proposed law.

CONDEMNED AT MASS MEETING

Lawrence Parents Demand That Legislature Make the Matter Optional

Lawrence, Feb. 4.—Compulsory vaccination of school children was unanimously condemned in resolutions passed at a stormy mass meeting of citizens in Public Library Hall. The meeting was under the auspices of the Medical Liberty League of Massachusetts.

The citizens petitioned that the Legislature amend the vaccination laws so that it may be optional with parents whether children shall be vaccinated.

The resolutions pointed out that only nine States had compulsory vaccination laws.

Opponents of compulsory vaccination did not have it all their own way, for doctors and nurses were present and entered into debate with officials of the Medical Liberty League, but when the voting was reached friends of vaccination had vanished.

Dr. K Kendrick Smith of Boston presided and had a hard time restraining the disorderly element. At one time it seemed as if the police would be called in. Mrs. Jessie Henderson, secretary of the Medical Liberty League, was the principal speaker.

WOMEN DEFEAT G. O. P. MEN AT NEW BEDFORD

J. M. Hughes Declares He Will Object to Acts of New Committee Officials

New Bedford, Feb. 4.—"The trouble started when we let the women in." So the admission of women voters as members of the Republican City Committee, James M. Hughes of this city attributes his defeat for chairmanship of the local city committee by Joseph R. Grinnon.

Not only did the women take part in the annual organization meeting of the New Bedford Republican City Committee, but Miss Ruth G. Hilton, formerly chairman of the woman's division, which acted as a separate unit up to a week ago, "copped" one of the choice prizes, the vice-presidency.

Mr. Hughes declared today that he would object to any official act on the part of the officers, whose election he declares was illegal.

"The women are learning the game quicker than most men," remarked Mr. Hughes, "but there are still several things that I think are new to them. They'll be sprung later."

In addition to the Hughes edict, William E. Foster, a former member of the committee, has started legal proceedings to force City Clerk Walter H. B. Remington to attest the election of several men who were rewarded as defeated.

It is the contention of the latter that the rules of membership do not limit the maximum number of members.

CLAIMS BORROWED AUTO IS USED IN RUM-RUNNING

George R. Porter of Boston is a bill of equity filed in the Superior Court against Albert H. Levinson alleges that the latter obtained from Porter an automobile for pleasure purposes only, but has since used it for transportation of liquor in violation of the National Act. On January 5 Federal agents at Stamford, Ct., seized the car, which since has been brought into Massachusetts by Levinson.

Porter says that Levinson has refused to deliver the automobile to him. Pending a hearing Levinson has been enjoined by Judge Wait from taking the automobile out of the State.

BIG SHAKEUP IN POLICE IS EXPECTED

Rumor That Three Downtown Captains Will Be Shifted to Outlying Stations

A Boston police shakeup is expected to follow the retirement of Deputy Superintendent Otis F. Kimball next week.

Commissioner Curtis will transfer several inten captains to outside stations and bring into the city men who have made their mark in the affairs of outlying districts.

Captains James P. Sullivan of Court square station, Richard Fitzgerald of Joy street station and Matthew J. Dailey of Lagrange street station are the intown captains scheduled to move. Two of them who will take their places are Captains Charles T. Reardon of Fields Corner and James J. Watkins of Mattapan. The former is understood to be destined for Court square and the latter for Lagrange street.

One other captain may be transferred. The commissioner has expressed dissatisfaction over conditions which permitted the recent indictment of seven police officers attached to the Court square station.

He did not believe the conditions existed to so great an extent as the indictments would indicate. The disposition of several of the cases, one through a jury verdict of not guilty and others by way of the nol pros, served to heighten his indignation. If Captain Sullivan is transferred it is highly probable that several of the other superior officers in his station will be shifted.

Conditions in the Lagrange street district have been under consideration for some time. There have been rumors of big gambling in that section.

One report is that a Lynn man lost in excess of $50,000 to an alleged agent of a New York gambling syndicate. It is said that the Lynn man first won $15,000 on a bet and that when he attempted to collect it he was informed that the New York parties had not sent the money along.

Next, it is claimed, he was induced to sit in in a card game in which he lost the $15,000. He returned to the place a short time later and again won a large bet. Once more he called to collect and again received the information that New York had not sent the money through. This time he declined to take part in the game.

He did, however, consent to go to New York to see the chiefs of the gambling ring. In New York they were evidently more skilful for once and before he was through he was induced to sit in a game. The same result followed. Subsequently, it is said, he has put more money in the syndicate and to have given markers for his losses.

Efforts are being made to collect on these markers. As a result a Boston attorney becomes interested in the case and information regarding the big loss became known to the police.

GIRLS TO STUDY AUTO ENGINES AT WELLESLEY

New Course Designed to Make Them Self-Reliant Drivers on the Road

Helen G. Forbush

Wellesley College girls aren't going to be victims of "engine trouble" any longer, thanks to a new course announced by the physics department of the institution. The subject is "The automobile; principles and construction." Miss Lucy Wilson will be instructor.

It is as a new building proves a fitting laboratory, Miss Wilson says, the girls will have actual motor work on the test stand and will make the wheels go 'round. In the meantime they will be taught the principles of carburetion, ignition, valve timing and the occult science of dealing with engine difficulties.

"Most of the time is spent on ignition and carburetion," said Miss Wilson. "The girls must learn to recognize troubles and to fix them. Until they become self-reliant they cannot become careful and intelligent drivers."

Thirty-six girls have enrolled for the course to date, among them Malden Chain of Melrose, a junior.

The "engine trouble" course shares honors as an excitement-provider with the poster contest now on in Newark, where more than a dozen men designed and painted by undergraduates, are on view this week in the studio of Gutzon Borglum, the sculptor. Miss Helen Forbush, a junior in the contest for an effective poster of the Wellesley semi-centennial fund. Miss Helen Forbush, a junior, is one of the contestants. The judges will be Mr. Borglum, Miss Cecelia Beaux, Joseph Leiseker, Charles Dana Gibson and Miss Bertha Stanghi, art instructor at the college.

CONGRESS WILL PROBE ESCAPE OF BERGDOLL

Federal District Attorney at Philadelphia Asked for All Papers in Case

Washington, Feb. 4.—Definite steps toward a Congressional investigation of the escape of Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, millionaire Philadelphia slacker, have been taken.

Chairman Kahn, of the House Military Affairs Committee, announced that he had been instructed by the committee to ask the Federal district attorney at Philadelphia for all papers in the case.

Bergdoll's recent statement to American newspaper correspondents in Germany that he had arranged his escape for $100,000 makes a "thorough and sweeping investigation necessary," Chairman Kahn stated.

Representative Blanton, Democrat, of Texas, declared he hoped the investigation would be made and that the "army officers that had anything to do with the infamous slacker's escape are sent to jail."

BRINDELL FOUND GUILTY OF EXTORTION

Building Trades "Czar" Will Be Sentenced in New York Next Tuesday

New York, Feb. 4.—Robert P. Brindell, head of the Building Trades Council, which, through him, dictated whether a building could be erected or taken down, was found guilty of extortion in the criminal branch of the Supreme Court.

Brindell was remanded to the Tombs until Tuesday to await sentence.

Brindell was convicted on the count that he had taken $5,000 from Max Aronson, a builder, to permit interrupted building to proceed. The bribe, it had been alleged, was taken on September 27 last. A series of other indictments still stand against Brindell.

The gist of the testimony brought forth by Samuel Untermeyer, prosecutor of the "Czar," has tended to show that Mr. Brindell was undisputed dictator of New York's building.

$9,836,167.12 B. & M.'S LOSS LAST YEAR

Official Report Shows Operating Expenses Were Nearly $2,500,000 Over Revenue

The Boston & Maine Railroad was operated at a loss of $9,836,167.12 for the year of 1920, according to an official report issued today.

Operating expenses were $3,665,216.21 more than revenue; tax accruals and uncollectable railway revenue brought this figure to $9,836,432.88, and a deficit of $4,230,265.29 in equipment rents, with another deficit of $117,431.94 in other rents, made the total loss almost $14,000,000.

In the year 1919 the company had an income of $8,149,317.37 over expenses.

Railway operating revenues for the year 1920 were $86,715,364.82, against $72,582,679.62 for 1919, an increase in revenues of $14,131,684.85. But to offset this increase the operating expenses grew from $66,025,197.86 in 1919 to $87,180,846.54, a jump of $21,127,173.54.

In the month of December the revenues from operations, $1,154,550.44, showed a substantial balance in favor of the railroad amounting to $405,382.69, but other expenses pulled this figure down until there was an actual loss of $94,197.41.

BAY STATE WOMEN AS JURORS

Explanation of How the Legal Machinery Is Set in Motion in Each Community to Obtain Citizens for Service

HOW JURORS ARE DRAWN.

Photo taken at City Hall shows Councillor Francis J. W. Ford, at left, passing slip of paper containing the name of a prospective juror to City Clerk James Donovan. This slip of paper was drawn from the hexagonal box which contains 8,000 names, by Councillor Ford at the order of James T. Moriarty, president of the City Council, who is shown standing between Ford and Donovan. When the Superior Court requests jurors, the president of the City Council is authorized by law to designate a Councillor to do the drawing if the Mayor is absent. The names contained in the box are supplied by the election commissioner. Assistant City Clerk Wilfred J. Doyle, seated in chair, records the names of the prospective juror as they are drawn.

The Boston American begins today the publication of a series of short illustrated articles, explaining to prospective women jurors how the jury system is handled in Massachusetts.

These articles tell women voters how jurors are chosen, what persons are exempt from jury work, how often a citizen is liable to jury duty and just what a jury does.

The first instalment deals with the method employed in setting the jury machinery in motion:

The law of Massachusetts provides that the registrar of voters or board of election commissioners shall prepare a list of persons "of good moral character and sound judgment" in January or February of each year from which jurors may be chosen.

This statute further states that the list "shall include not fewer than one for every 100 inhabitants of the city or town nor more than one for every sixty inhabitants according to the latest census, State or national, but in the counties of Nantucket or Dukes it may include one for every thirty inhabitants."

Because of the immense amount of work thrust upon the election commissioners of Boston on account of women obtaining the right to vote last year, the time for preparing this list of names has been extended to July 1 of this year.

For this reason the Boston election commissioners have done nothing toward the preparation of this years list. They are now engaged in redistricting the city and expect to add forty voting precincts to the present total of 221 before April 1.

A temporary list selected by the election commissioners in this city always contains names of persons from every ward. Care is taken to select persons of reasonably mature age—and those who have lived in the city for several years, as it is presumed that if a person has lived in a community for a long time he is a pretty good citizen.

No one has a "right" to go on the jury list and anyone who approaches the election officials with the request that his name be placed on the list may be punished by a fine not exceeding $500.

Jury service is a duty that must be performed by all citizens called upon except those unfitted by reason of illness and others who are specially exempted by law. A person is liable for jury duty once in three years except in Nantucket and Dukes Counties, where, because of the small population, the time limit is two years.

Tomorrow's article will deal with those who are exempt from jury duty.

2 ARRESTED IN DRUG RAID AT PROVIDENCE

Federal Official Charges Geo. A. Waugh, 57, Is Head of "Narcotic Ring"

Providence, Feb. 4.—Drugs valued at more than $800 and a large stock of needles and hypodermic syringes were seized here by Agent C. V. Stifano of the narcotic squad of the Internal Revenue Department and Inspectors Bowen and Franklin of police headquarters. Two men were arrested charged with violating the Harrison drug act.

The drugs were found in the home of George A. Waugh, fifty-seven years old, No. 19 Beacon street, during a raid conducted by the officials. Charles Parnisano, twenty-six years old, of No. 61 Penn street, whom the police say is a "runner" or salesman for Waugh, was arrested later on Broad street. A dram of morphine valued at $18 was found in his possession.

Agent Stifano declares that he is satisfied that Waugh is the head of the drug ring which has operated here for several weeks. Waugh, he says, has made frequent trips to Canada and has returned with "dope" which he has peddled to addicts.

The police say that Waugh has admitted weighing out the drug and giving it to Parnisano to sell.

MAYFLOWER WILL BE READY TO ENTER RACE

A member of the syndicate promoting the building of the fisherman, said no difficulty was expected in complying with the conditions that make a contending vessel a fisherman under the rules governing the international contest.

CHARGE MOVE TO DISRUPT CHURCH

Counsel for Second Universalist Accuses State Conference of Untruths at Hearing

Charges that an attempt is being made to disrupt the Second Universalist Society of Boston by the national and State Universalist conventions in order to get a strangle hold on $1,000,000 worth of property on School street and Columbus avenue were made at a stormy factional hearing before the Legislative Committee on Mercantile Affairs.

The charges were made at a public hearing on the bill brought by representatives of the supreme and State bodies to repeal the charter and to appoint a receiver to administer the valuable properties of the famous Boston church, which was established in 1816 and is one of the landmarks of the Universalist faith.

Charges that the church has failed to function, that it has abandoned its Sunday school and young peoples' societies "and is of no service to the denomination or community," were made by Attorney A. Ingham Bicknell and the Rev. Dr. George M. Leighton, State superintendent of the state Conference.

CHARGES SCANDAL.

"The conduct of its affairs has become a public scandal," said Attorney Bicknell. "Although one of the oldest and most prosperous churches of the denomination, we come here in humiliation to admit that it has ceased to function."

Dr. Leighton said that in the drive for the $1,000,000 Universalist fund, the Second Society's quota was fixed at $25,000, but that it turned over only $30, which was the contribution of an individual subscriber.

He said it gave absolutely no cooperation to the recent drive for new members and had refused for several years to make an annual report of its affairs to the State Convention.

The property holdings of the church include the building on School street now occupied by the Five Cents Savings Bank and the Columbus avenue site of the church which was burned about seven years ago. Bicknell said the School street property is worth more than $1,000,000, and the Columbus avenue property about $150,000.

"This hearing has been leaded down with misstatements," replied Attorney Albert A. Gleason, who has been clerk and a member of the standing committee of the Second Church a great many years.

ACCUSES CONVENTIONS.

"We have received absolutely no help from the State or National Conventions. In fact, they have hanged us right and left and given us the notoriety which is harmful to any church. We needed sympathy, but received not a word of sympathy from them. Their statements that they have helped us are absolutely untrue.

"The State convention by some hokus-pokus wants to get hold of the property and run it," said the Rev. Dr. A. H. Roblin, pastor of the Second Church. "Why let them run it? Every church they have put their hands on is dead—five of them in twenty years, and the sixth had to combine with another. The churches in South Boston, East Boston, Upham's Corner, Ashmont and Hazelwood are dead.

"They have given us absolutely no help. In fact, we have come to the point where we may have to keep a detective or two up here to find out what they are going to do next. I think we ought to establish an independent church and let these people go whistle."

Foot of Man Caught in Fish Trap

Newport, R. I., Feb. 4.—Captain Earl C. Clarke of fishing sloop Francis G. of Point Judith hauled in a trap off the point and found a human foot in a canvas leather strapped shoe. He delivered it to the police.

When the Cape Prar bodies began to appear, Chief Tobin received descriptions of many missing men. Among the queries was one from Boston, telling of the loss of a man from a yacht off Point Judith last Summer.

The foot is presumed to be what remained of this man.

FIRES 4 SHOTS DURING CHASE OF TRIO

East Boston Man Uses Gun and Auto in Pursuit of Alleged Attackers; One Caught

Attacked by three suspicious acting youths whom he found lurking in the rear of his repair shop at No. 1223 Bennington street, East Boston, Thomas Grosse jumped into an automobile as the trio fled from the scene and gave chase, firing four shots from his revolver and attracting the attention of former Patrolman George Greer, who captured one of the alleged offenders.

The arrested youth gave his name as Alfred R. Gatenby, aged 17, No. 324 Bremen street.

Grosse, on approaching the trio back of his shop, ordered them away after asking what they wanted on his premises. It is alleged that one of them struck him a blow in the face, following which the three ran toward the Orient Heights Narrow Gauge depot.

His drop took him into a room in which the authorities had stored all liquor seized in raids. Kane made such a commotion in the room that he was heard and taken into custody again.

NO FAVORS TO BE SHOWN IN MOVIE TEST

Everybody Has Free Field and Equal Chance to Win $5,000 Awards

The Movie Test Editor today asks for only space enough to answer two or three correspondents.

His first letter comes from Lonsdale, R. I., and reads in part:

Could you possibly supply me with pictures numbered 47 and 48? I had them, I am quite sure, but in putting my pictures together in rotation I find these two have disappeared and, as I am very anxious to continue in the Test, hope you can get them for me.

There are two questions I would like to ask. (1) Does it make any difference if some of the pictures are large ones and some small ones? (2) Will there be two pictures of the same actor or actress?

ABSOLUTELY NO BACK COPIES.

The Movie Test Editor is sorry to be obliged to repeat that the Circulation Department is unable to furnish back copies of either the Boston American or the Boston Sunday Advertiser. Our friend's only hope is in the local agent of the co-operating newspapers. In reply to her questions: (1) Identification may include both large and small pictures. (2) This is a question we have been compelled to side-step again and again. Is it a fair question? Isn't it up to the reader to "identify" the picture? Can the co-operating newspapers reasonably be expected to do more than pay $5,000 to those who correctly identify the largest percentages of pictures.

The Movie Test Editor hates like thunder to take this position. His own first impulse is to tell everybody everything they want to know about the Test. But, there's the rub, it IS a Test.

The second letter is dated Newport, R. I.—delightful city—and reads as follows:

Could you kindly tell me in what picture plays the players numbered 44, 48, 52, 70, 72, 79, 80, 6, 15, 26, 37 and 38 have appeared? I know their faces and if I knew the pictures they have appeared in feel that the names would come. Enclosed find stamped and addressed envelope.

Exactly the sort of things a fellow could not do in fairness to other participants. Sorry, dear lady, but this is the situation. Fair field and no special favors. Square deal for everybody!

The third letter comes from nearer home. It is dated "Roslindale," and reads:

If it is not against the rules, will you please tell me if all the pictures being printed are of "stars," or can they be of anybody in the movies?

A proper question and entitled to an answer which will leave nothing unsaid. From the very beginning the Test has been described as one in which the 126 pictures of "favorite," or "popular," players would be used.

ALL PICTURES OF "PLAYERS."

The careful and observant reader will take notice of two extremely important things. There are to be "126 pictures" and they are to be the pictures of "players."

Perhaps the Movie Test Editor may go a little further and say that no player in the entire list is unknown or unfamiliar to New England audiences. In other words, there are no "unknowns" in the list and no "ringers."

When the Test is ended, the names of the players must be printed. It then will be found that there has been no "catch," anywhere. We are, it is true, making a real TEST of the Test as the end approaches. But not so very long ago the Test was "too easy." Participants glanced at the Test pictures, named them in a moment and were "all set" for the next day.

WELLESLEY JUNIOR PROM FEBRUARY 11

MISS TALMADGE COURTED AND WON BY WIRE

Natalie, One of Famous Sisters, to Be Bride of Buster Keaton

Palm Beach, Fla., Feb. 4—A telegraphic courtship between Florida and California—a telegraphic proposal and a telegraphic acceptance—such is the story of the romance of Natalie Talmadge, sister of Constance and Norma Talmadge, motion picture stars, and Buster Keaton, movie actor.

Miss Natalie Talmadge.

Natalie Talmadge admitted today that reports of her engagement to Keaton are true. She declared that she did not know as yet just when the marriage will take place but that Keaton will come East in May.

Natalie, with her mother, her sister Norma, and her brother-in-law, Joseph Schenck, is Wintering here.

She is rather reticent as to details of the courtship. When asked whether it had been conducted by letters she merely laughed. She met Keaton four years ago but has not seen him for two years.

However, intimated that most of the communication between the pair had been by telegraph. She added that Natalie had not told the family very much about it either. "There isn't anything to tell," insisted Natalie.

Natalie admits to twenty-two years so far as age is concerned. She says Buster is three years older.

The new barley is said to be a great producer. It took Burbank a number of years to work it out in his crossing and recrossing process.

DR. AKED TELLS WHY FORD IS A JEW-BAITER

The Rev. Charles F. Aked, in an article published in The Congregationalist for February 5, gives one explanation for the Jew baiting carried on by Henry Ford in his paper, the Dearborn Independent, that is entirely new.

Dr. Aked traces the cause for the automobile manufacturer's antipathies to the Hebrew to something that happened on the trip of the Peace Ship. The article follows:

In England there are five seasons, Spring, Summer, Autumn, Winter—and the Silly Season. The silly season is the period of the year when Parliament is not sitting, when the courts are enjoying the "long vacation," when grouse may not be hunted—when the unspeakable may not be seen in full pursuit of the uneatable—when there is only cricket to stir the lazy blood, and when the newspapers are at their wits' end for something spicy.

Rev. C. F. Aked, D. D., L. L. D.

So in the silly season of one year the serpent appears, and another year it is a big gooseberry; one year there are columns of letters and articles about "martyrs of civilization" (meaning married women) and another year the question is, "Shall the clergy criticize the Bible?"

For the last half dozen years or so the World War has furnished even the most jaded of newspaper readers and the silly season has been forgotten. The year one and 1 was another. For me, it was the most disastrous and humiliating experience of my life—the most shattering and overwhelming. For Henry Ford it must have been positively maddening. He was entirely sincere. He was actuated by a lofty purpose. He was tricked and foiled and made ridiculous before the whole world. And so was I.

At that time I was minister of the First Congregational Church of San Francisco. On Saturday morning, November 27, 1915, I received the following telegram:

Will you come as my guest aboard the Oscar II, of the Scandinavian American line sailing from New York December 4 for Christiania, Stockholm and Copenhagen? I am cabling leading men and women of the European nations to join us en route and at some central point, to be determined later, establish an International conference dedicated to negotiations leading to a just settlement of the war. A hundred representative Americans are invited. Full letter follows. With twenty thousand men killed every twenty-four hours, tens of thousands maimed, homes ruined, another Winter begun, the time has come for a few men and women with courage and energy irrespective of the cost in personal inconvenience, energy, sacrifice and criticism, to free the good will of Europe that it may assert itself for peace and justice with the strong probability that international disarmament can be accomplished.

HENRY FORD.

SAW NOTHING ABSURD.

In this there is nothing absurd. Looking at it after five years it still appears sane and reasonable. There is nothing about getting the boys out of the trenches by Christmas; nothing to arouse the justifiable contempt of the world. There was not time to make inquiries. The last train by which I could leave San Francisco for New York, if I was to join my company sailing on the following Saturday, left Monday morning at 10:30.

Every arrangement for my long absence from my church must be made on Saturday and Sunday; how could I know what depths of imbecility were covered by the innocent looking telegram!

There were some men and women of character and standing in the company, fellow dupes and fellow victims. And our ship carried some of the most worthless specimens of ragtag and bobtail that American cities could supply. The newspapers made out a horrible story. The facts were more horrible than the newspaper stories.

MISCHIEF DONE.

Things were said and done too coarse and gross even for the hardened newspaper men of New York city. And Rosika Schwimmer, a Hungarian Jewess, dominated all! She was the "evil genius" of the Ford Expedition. When at last Henry Ford expelled her, demanded her resignation, that is to say, and refused to send money until she had withdrawn —the mischief was done. The Ford Expedition was the laughing stock of two continents.

She had persuaded Henry Ford that the Great Powers, or some of them, were ready for peace; that some or the biggest of the belligerent governments were only waiting for somebody to build a bridge over which they could cross so as to enter into negotiations with that end in view; that these governments would prefer an official conference convened by President Wilson; that he had actually refused to call a conference, and that they were willing to accept the mediation of such a conference as Ford might set up.

From beginning to end there was not a word of truth in it. And when Ford found that he had been tricked and deceived, found himself a butt and a dupe, he became wild and left the expedition, sick at heart and in bitterness of spirit.

I suggest now that his blood has been poisoned against the Jewish race by this wretched intelligence. Agreed, it is narrowminded and unphilosophical to ascribe to a race the defects of an individual. But somebody ever accused Mr. Ford of being a philosopher? He is an automobile manufacturer. And the American Hebrew need not grow angry with him. Perhaps it is not anti-Semitism at all. Perhaps it is—Rosika Schwimmer.

OUR DEBT TO HEBREW SPIRIT.

It would be a sin to dignify the Dearborn Independent articles, now published in book form, by serious examination and serious reply. The simple fact is that the American people may profit as deeply by the interbreathing of the Hebrew spirit as the individual Hebrew may profit by participation in the advantages and exploitation of the resources of our Western World. He brings to us his idealism—he, the supreme idealist of the human race. He brings to us his visions and his dreams, he the child of the Hebrew prophets. He brings to us his belief in democracy, he who has supplied the brains of a hundred liberal movements on the continent of Europe, and whose persistence in the strife for liberty is as the dawning sh of a mighty river and as the shining of the stars.

Let no descendant of a Mayflower Pilgrim—and it is wonderful how many of them there are—thinks of himself as the only good American. The Russian and the Polish and the Rumanian Ghetto breeds its pilgrims, too. And America has need of them yet.

SPIKERS, HAPPY AFTER ONE YEAR, TO CELEBRATE

Baltimore, Feb. 4.—Skeptics who predicted unhappy obstacles when Guy Spiker married Miss Emily Knowles, an English girl, and adopted Miss Knowles' baby, will be put to shame on Sunday. when the first anniversary of the marriage is celebrated in the Spiker home with a big family dinner.

Emily Knowles Spiker.

Among those who will attend Mrs. Perley Spiker, brother of Guy and father of Miss Knowles' child, and Mrs. Perley Spiker, the forgiving wife of the erring husband.

Thus, there have been rumors of a disagreement, but Mrs. Guy Spiker denied them today while telling of plans for the celebration. Perley Spiker met Miss Knowles in England while he was a member of the American air force. When the girl came to this country with or baby Guy married her "to save the family name."

Judge Absolves Katzmans and Squires

"The name of District Attorney Peltason has figured in the evidence, and naturally created much public interest in the outcome of this case, which ordinarily in its trial would have attracted comparatively little notice.

Concerning this phase of the case, I wish to record my opinion based upon the evidence presented at the trial, that the use made of his name, as well as any possible reference to the conduct of is office in relation to this defendant, or to the Vansetti and Coco cases, was wholly unwarranted and unjust, and that all attempt to thus cast discredit upon him or upon his office was reprehensible to the u degree.

"I also further to add that all utterances tending to cast any credit on the names and conduct of Attorneys Percy Katzman d F. J. Squires in connection ith this case were equally unwarranted."

—Presidge Michael J. Murray's comnt on the De Falco case.

MRS. DE FALCO FOUND NOT GUILTY

Judge Murray Raps Witnesses Who Used Names of Katzmans and Squires

Judge Michael J. Murray in finding Mrs. Angelina De Falco not guilty of soliciting legal business illegally, warned persons against attacking or besmirching the integrity of public officials without positive knowledge whereof they speak.

He severely scored witnesses for the prosecution for using the name of District Attorney Frederick G. Katzman of Norfolk County; his brother, Percy A. Katzman, and Francis J. Squires, clerk of the Dedham District Court, declaring that reference to them was "wholly unwarranted and unjust."

It had been charged by Aldino Pellicani, secretary of the Sacco-Vanzetti Defence Committee, who filed the complaint, and other witnesses on his behalf, that Mrs. De Falco, who is an interpreter in the Dedham Court, came to them and declared that through her friendship with these Dedham men she would secure for them the release of Nicola Sacco and Bartholomeo Vanzetti, who are now awaiting trial for murder in connection with the South Braintree payroll robbery.

They testified that for $40,000, which would be given to Percy A. Katzman and Squires a "mock trial" could be arranged and Sacco and Vanzetti would gain their liberty.

Thousands Are Nervous Wrecks

Cross, Crabbed and Care-worn

From Weak, Thin Watery Blood

without ever suspecting the real cause of their trouble—Iron-starvation.

A New York Physician says that MORE THAN ONE-HALF THE POPULATION OF AMERICA PERISHES BEFORE MIDDLE AGE and that one of the chief contributory causes of this terrible waste of human life is the devitalizing weakness brought on by lack of iron in the blood.

THERE ARE 30,000,000,000,000 RED BLOOD CORPUSCLES IN YOUR BLOOD AND EACH ONE MUST HAVE IRON.

An enormous number of people who ought to be strong, vigorous and in the prime of life, are constantly complaining of weak nerves, headaching, pains across the back, disturbed digestion, shortness of breath, a general "run-down" condition, melancholy, bad memory, etc., when the real cause of all their suffering is IRON STARVATION OF THE BLOOD.

The proof of this is shown by the fact that when pleasant iron is supplied to their blood, the symptoms of nervousness often disappear almost as if by magic, and they soon feel like different people. It was in this way that Nuxated Iron gained its world-wide reputation. Nuxated Iron is not a secret remedy, but one whose iron constituent is widely prescribed by leading physicians in their private practice, and is extensively dispensed by druggists under its own name. It is extremely important, however, that you should obtain Nuxated Iron in its original form and not some of the cheap substitutes or imitations which are sometimes offered in place of it. Nuxated Iron is not a patent medicine, but is a scientific compound from the very best kind of iron, which is thoroughly assimilable and which is guaranteed to be absolutely free from any mineral acids, and not to injure the teeth or stomach, nor cause constipation. Nuxated Iron is also guaranteed to contain no opium, cocaine or any of the habit forming drugs. If you are not strong and well, you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Then take two tablets of Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained. Many nervous, run-down people have increased their strength 100 per cent or more in two weeks' time. Nuxated Iron is sold by all druggists. Ask your druggist for it by name.

Run-down for 15 Years—Regains Strength Through Animal Gland Tablets

Mrs. Dailey So Weak She Could Hardly Stand on Feet, Nerves Were Always on Edge, Had No Appetite

Says Glandex Compound Built Her Up Wonderfully In Few Weeks

"After being weak, nervous and run-down generally for the past fifteen years, and having tried dozens of tonics and medicines with little or no benefit, I can truthfully state that Glandex Compound has helped me wonderfully, even though I have been taking it for only a few weeks."

This is the remarkable statement made by Mrs. Samuel E. Dailey, of 25 Clinton Street, Cambridge, Mass., when questioned the other day regarding her experience with Glandex Compound, the famous new tonic containing animal gland extracts, which has excited so much interest lately through the results that it is bringing wherever used.

"Every year I kept getting weaker and weaker," continued Mrs. Dailey, "until finally it seemed that I did not have an ounce of strength left in my body. I was so weak I could hardly raise my hands to fix my hair. When I went shopping, I would scarcely have strength left to get home. I didn't walk—I simply dragged one foot after the other.

"In addition I was frightfully nervous. The least little thing would frighten and excite me, so that some times my hands would tremble like a leaf.

"My appetite deserted me completely. Nothing tasted good. I lost so much weight that friends who hadn't seen me for a long time could hardly believe that I was the same person. I used to have terrible fits of the 'blues,' and was often on the point of bursting into tears for no reason at all."

Improvement in Few Days

"Then one day, a few weeks ago, I visited my cousin in Malden, and she recommended me to try Glandex Compound. That very day I bought my first bottle, and only a few days later I began to notice an improvement. This improvement has increased ever since, so that now I am getting stronger and stronger every day. My nervousness is fast disappearing and my appetite is splendid. All my friends tell me that I look 100% better than I used to.

"To other women who are suffering from run-down conditions and nervousness I heartily recommend this wonderful Glandex Compound, for it has helped me tremendously."

Why Glandex Brings Results

No doubt many people wonder why Glandex Compound so often succeeds when other tonics have failed and how it brings its surprising results in such a short time. The reason is simple—for Glandex Compound is an entirely new kind of tonic and is based on an entirely new method of treatment.

Recent scientific discoveries have brought to light amazing facts concerning the function of our ductless glands. It has been found that these tiny organs supply our bodies with elements which are of vital importance to the building up of the billions of cells of blood, bone and tissue. It would seem, therefore, that it is upon the perfect functioning of these glands that the health of the individual depends. And that when our ductless glands through overwork, illness or our mode of living become unable to do their work we become thin, anaemic and run-down generally.

At first it was thought that in order to supply the extracts needed to renourish run-down glands, an operation was necessary—(as in the case of the now famous monkey gland experiments.) Recently, however, it has been found that decided results may be obtained through administering in tablet form extracts taken from the glands of healthy sheep and cattle, much as pepsin, also taken from an animal, is used for indigestion.

In Glandex Compound is embodied this method. While other tonics only treat directly various symptoms such as thin blood, loss of appetite, nervousness, etc., Glandex Compound attacks the trouble which causes these symptoms — ill-nourished glands. And in addition to the gland extracts it also contains a special form of iron and other well known ingredients, so that it really performs a double purpose.

Reports are constantly appearing in ever increasing numbers of the results brought about by this new tonic. Weak, worn-out men and women everywhere say that Glandex Compound is not only valuable as a flesh-builder and nerve restorer, but that it often seems to actually bring back the vigor and health of youth. Some statements, even more remarkable than that made by Mrs. Dailey, claim that Glandex Compound has made its users feel years younger after a few weeks treatment.

Try Glandex Without Risk

If you are weak, thin, nervous, run-down, sleepless, or have lost your appetite, it is recommended that you try Glandex Compound with the understanding of money back if you are not more than satisfied. But you are advised to act at once, for so great is the demand that druggists say that their supplies frequently run out before more can be obtained.

Stocks Irregular at Noon; Money 8%; Sterling Lower

TONE IS HEAVY IN NEW YORK MARKET

Fluctuations Are Narrow and the Trend Uncertain; New Haven a Weak Rail

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

Stocks were irregular in New York at noon, there having been a second hour rally. A majority of leaders finished the morning with small gains. Crucible was a shade higher, and among other issues which had advanced were American Sugar, Atlantic Gulf, Baldwin, Woolen common, Texas and Pacific, Royal Dutch, U. S. Steel, U. S. Rubber, Mexican Petroleum, Reading and Northern Pacific.

Gains ranged from fractions to more than two points. Among weak stocks were New Haven, Pressed Steel Car, Goodrich, General Asphalt, International Paper, Beech Magneto, Sumatra, Tobacco Products, Texas & Pacific Coal and Oil and Studebaker.

Call money opened at 8 per cent. Sterling exchange was steady and continental rates had an easier tone. The stock market was active, 500 hour transactions exceeding 220,000 shares.

MOST STOCKS RECEDED.

At the opening the trend was uncertain and prices mixed to changes, but the majority of issues soon showed first gains and the tone was unfavorable. Early declines were small and operations by traders indicated some uncertainty on their part. There was less disposition to sell short and no impelling motive to cover. Speculators in securities are now awaiting developments which will have decisive influence. Fluctuations were confined to fractions in most instances.

Crucible was especially active at the start, selling a point lower and soon recovering to the extent of a small gain. It then reacted more than a point. Marconi Parcels and Atlantic Gulf yielded, rallied and again receded within a few minutes. General Asphalt opened off a point and soon began again. International Paper was consistently weak. New Haven showed a largest loss among carriers. At the end of thirty minutes, when there is usually a lull or a change in the general trend, the market seemed a little weaker than at the opening. Texas & Pacific was comparatively strong during the first hour, while Tobacco issues had remained down until the list as a whole was irregular, if heavy.

EXPECT MORE LIQUIDATION.

The downward movement of commodities, particularly oil, wheat and cotton, raising the question whether liquidation is over. The prevailing opinion is not a lower level must be reached, while readjusting continues stocks cannot be expected to improve much. Buyers are now so strongly held that it is doubted if selling can be forced to the extent as late last year. Most observants of values expect the market to remain dull and narrow for a number of securities. Traders are bearish almost to an individual, but the short interest has become so small that the situation is calculated to inspire caution. The present money rates are considered temporary and due to shifting balances and withdrawal of New York funds by banks in the interior.

Less Pig Iron Produced

Pig iron production in January decreased about 300,000 tons as compared with December, it is stated by the Iron Age. This is an indication of decreased steel output. Pig iron production in January totaled 2,405,345 tons, or 77,478 per day, against 2,763,-755 in December, or 87,522 per day.

Not since May, 1915, apart from the strike months of May, June and October, 1919, has so little pig iron been made. There was a set loss of nine independent steel company and ten merchant furnaces in January, while the Steel Corporation's gain was one. Active furnaces totaled 153 February 1, against 291 on January 1. Today only thirty-eight merchant furnaces are in blast.

The Southwest Penn Pipe Line reports for last year profits of $256,149, equal to $16.17 a share, against $250,312, or $7.15 a share in 1919.

PRICES RECEDE ON BOSTON EXCHANGE

Market Irregular at Opening, but Soon Weakens; Curb Reacts After Strong Start

After an irregular opening the Boston market became weak but the recessional was of a moderate character. Trading had no outstanding feature and was as lacking in breadth as before this week. Conditions did not change at all during the morning. Coppers were quiet and mixed as to changes. The majority sold off. Copper Range was the leader of this group. Packing issues were irregular in movement but heavy on the whole. New Haven was off ⅝ at its former lowest. It was the only rail sold in the first hour. Amoskeag and New England Telephone advanced a point during the morning. Ahmeek declined two. Calumet & Hecla opened at 550, but was soon down to 548.

Among issues to make fractional gains were Copper Range, Libby and Superior & Boston. Small losses were sustained by American Telephone, Calumet & Arizona, Schwabs, East Butte, United Fruit, Ventura, National Leather, Eastern Manufacturing, Wickwire, Swift & Co. and Edison.

CURB WAS ACTIVE.

The Curb market was fairly active at the start and after the morning and had a strong tone at the start. It was not maintained, however. By mid-morning it was somewhat weak. Early leaders were Boston & Montana, Eureka and Verde Mines. Not much done outside of this trio. Among issues to open higher were Alpha, Arizona Pip Top, Delaware, Daddy, Eureka, Gulfport, Mutual, Randolph and Texann. Losses were shown at once by Albany, Crystal and Imperial.

At the end of an hour Boston & Montana was up 4 cents at 73 cents, Allied Mining 1 cent at 24 cents, and Randolph 6 cents at 58. Declines included Eureka 3 cents at 66 cents, and Verde Mines 2 cents at 30 cents.

BOSTON FINANCIAL NOTES.

For 1920 the Mullins Body Corporation reports net profits after interest and Federal taxes of $791,393, which equals after preferred dividends to $7.31 a share on common stock outstanding.

The Boston Stock Exchange will close at 12:30 p. m. on Thursday, February 10, for the purchase of Liberty bonds of the second issue. Special Exchange Imperial Bonds.

Sales by the United Drug Company in 1920 were $25,000,000, an increase of more than 28 per cent, as compared with the preceding year.

ENGLAND HAS RESUMED CUBAN SUGAR BUYING

Within a few days British buying of raw sugar in Cuba has amounted to about 100,000 tons and it is understood that the price on the f. o. b. basis approximated four cents. This would mean transactions amounting to from $3,000,000 to $10,000,000. Production in Cuba at present is estimated at 3,000,000 tons a week and receipts from plantations last week aggregated 2,192,157 against 116,752 for the corresponding 1920 period.

Although the recent price has been the lowest known for many years, refining on the new crop has been steady and sentiment is more hopeful. The money for the new crop comes in. New moratorium legislation indicates less desire for outside assistance.

Tobacco Stocks Larger

The leaf tobacco holdings by manufacturers and dealers in this country increased during 1920, according to the Census Bureau report. Holdings on January 1 this year were 1,446,-914,449 pounds, against 1,318,131,291 on the corresponding date in 1920. Unstemmed holdings at the first of this year were 1,555,053,240 pounds and stemmed 191,831,429.

BEAR RAIDERS ARE GAINING GROUND

Resistance Is Yielding to Persistent Selling Pressure for a Month

By BROADAN WALL.
Registered U. S. Patent Office.

New York, Feb. 4.—The resistance which the stock market has shown to professional bear attacks the last month gave way yesterday to weakness and declines ranging from one to three points. Still greater losses in the specialties were established. Pressure was particularly directed to the oil shares, which were under pressure throughout the session. Independent steel shares were also centres of selling.

Initial prices showed irregularity, with most issues showing declines. The market continued heavy during the early part of the session, but rallied somewhat around noon on short covering. Selling pressure increased during the afternoon and continued up to the close, when final quotations were around the lowest.

Consensus of opinion in Wall street is that there is still "some big game to be shot down" in the stock market. In other words, there are a few large accounts that have to be liquidated or taken over. The public is conspicuous for its absence. Customers' rooms of brokerage houses are deserted. In view of the absence of buying power, except from shorts, scattered liquidation is expected and this selling, together with professional bear operations, is expected to cause a further set-back in prices.

The Texas & Pacific reports increased $2,217,-77 in gross and gained $349,979 in net.

Reports of Mobile road for last gives increased $815,363 in December, while its deficit decreased $1,007,170, making a net gain of $84,993 for the month. For the year 1920 it gained $14,-239,856 in gross and its deficit increased to $9,856,167, a decrease of $14,004,384.

Reports of Wabash road for 1920 years. Surplus after charges increased $2,562,606 during December, but reports for the month as compared with last year showed a decrease. The latter reports a decrease of $2,372,267.

Cotton Market Opening

New York, Feb. 4.— The cotton market opened active and feverish at 6 points' advance of 4 to 11 points. Wall Street and New Orleans were selling freely. Buying by the South and spot houses sold. Liverpool sold May and bought the July. At the end of twenty minutes the list was heavy, with prices off last night's close. Opening prices were: March, 13.35; May, 13.80; July, 14.06; Sept., 14.30; Dec., 14.56; Jan., 14.56.

IRISH BODY WILL CONVENE FEB. 13

3,500 Delegates to Elect A. A. R. I. R. Officers at Mechanics Bldg. Meeting

More than 3,500 delegates from all sections of the State will attend the initial conventions of the American Association for the Recognition of the Irish Republic, to be held in Mechanics Building, Huntington avenue, Sunday, February 13, from 10 a. m. to 6 p. m.

The convention is called at the instance of President Eamon De Valera of the Irish Republic, who, in a communication to State President John F. Harrigan of Worcester says that if he made broad enough to embrace every sympathy with Ireland's right; make it truly democratic, free from machine methods, with the voice of the people through their accredited delegates, supreme.

EXPECT COX WILL ATTEND.

Gov. Channing H. Cox is expected to extend the greetings of the State. Mayor Andrew J. Peters will speak for Boston. A large number of the delegates will be women. Special trains have been chartered to bring the delegation from Holyoke and other points in the western part of the State to Boston.

To date there are 150 councils of the association in the State and fifty others are now being formed. The largest council is in Worcester, which has 7,000 members.

WILL ELECT OFFICERS.

The big feature of the convention President Harrigan is being asked to stand for election as head of the organization. He will undoubtedly be a candidate. He has been the dynamo of energy that is responsible for the splendid organization of the association.

John J. Foley, the vice-president, has been an able assistant to Harrigan, and holding the position of president of the Central Council of Irish County Associations, it is felt that his election will uphold the hands of Harrigan, as will also the election of Thomas N. Nolan, secretary, whose work, according to many of the delegates, has been one of devotion to the Irish cause.

Daniel O'Connell Council of Malden, will hold a mass meeting in Eagle Hall, Wigglesworth street, Malden, Sunday evening. Prominent speakers recently arrived from Ireland will address the members. The meeting begins at 8 o'clock.

Tarakanath Das, Hindu orator and journalist, and co-workers of the Charles Stewart Parnell Council, A. A. R. I. R., in Ruggles Hall tonight. Sunday, Martin Walsh Council will hear him at Paine Memorial Hall in the afternoon and at the Walk hill address a mass meeting in Maplewood Theatre, Maplewood, on the "Ravages and Monopoly of the Opium Trade in India."

AGREE ON PARLEY ON BUILDERS' STRIKE

After several days of parley, during which the employing builders showed little inclination to enter negotiations, a meeting of representatives of the striking building trades council and their employers was finally arranged by the Mayor's office. The meeting is to be held on Tuesday afternoon next in the Aldermanic chamber. Each side is to have five representatives and the Mayor will try to arbitrate their differences. He was unable to say whether the conference will be public.

Hair Often Ruined By Careless Washing

Soap should be used very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls of Mulsified will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any pharmacy. It's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified.—Advertisement

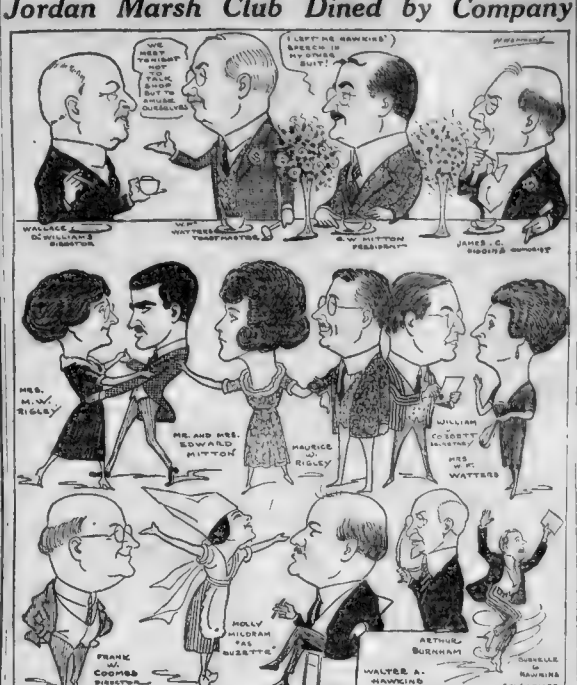
Jordan Marsh Club Dined by Company



How Artist Harmony glimpsed happy club members and heads of firm at Jordan Marsh Company's banquet to its Quarter Century Club.

The annual banquet and entertainment of the Jordan Marsh Company Quarter Century Club was held in the store's cafeteria, about 260 members of the organization, who have been in the company's employ twenty-five years or more attending. W. F. Watters, the vice-president of the company and a member of the club, was toastmaster.

George W. Mitton, president of the Jordan Marsh Company, welcomed the members and thanked them for their loyal service during the year passed. Referring to business conditions he said:

"We must keep hustling to keep things running smoothly, but by the late Spring and surely before Autumn, we will be back on a firm footing again."

GIVEN GOLD CASE.

The dean of the club, James Grainger, who has seen a half century's service with the company, received, from Mitton the first of the buttons to be worn by the club members in recognition of their long connection. The button bears five stars, each representing five years of service.

Thomas F. Lockney, following a short address, presented to Walter A. Hawkins, a director and founder of the club, a gold cigarette case, the gift of members.

The program of entertainment was headed by Molly Mildram, whose impersonations and songs were delightful. She was accompanied at the piano by Estelle K. Shevlin.

FORM 40-YEAR CLUB.

The community singing of old and new songs was led by Burnelle G. Hawkins. The rest of the program was made up of selections by the Harvard Quartet, Horwood's Orchestra and interpretations of some newspaper poems by James C. Higgins. General dancing followed the entertainment.

The guests of the evening included Mr. and Mrs. Edward Mitton, Maurice Wrigley, treasurer of the company, and Mrs. Wrigley, President G. W. Mitton, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Watters, Richard Mitton, F. W. Coombs, director of the company, and Mrs. Coombs, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Williams and Arthur Burnham.

A club within a club was formed last night with the creation of the "Forty Year Associates." Those present who qualified for membership were Frank Coleman, Catherine Doncan, N. W. Goodwin, Dennis Cahan, T. F. Giblin, J. B. Crowley, W. F. Larrabee, W. F. Watters, W. D. Williams, A. H. Wright, W. J. Corbett, Rebecca Corthell, Elizabeth Courtney, D. J. Fitzgerald, Grace Bettes, James Rogers, Alice Hardy, Louis Heier, John F. Cooney, T. F. Garrity, George Weeks and James Grainger.

JUDGE SMELLS WINE, ASSESSES CHINESE $50

The claim that Chinese wine was to be used for sacramental purposes in connection with Chinese New Year, which is to be celebrated next Monday, failed to exempt Henry Wong of Tyler street, Boston from the charge of violating the prohibition laws. In Dorchester Court today Henry paid a fine of $50 after Sergeant Hines had poured some of the beverage on his hands and permitted Judge Churchill to smell the alcoholic odor arising therefrom.

'All Ye That Delight in Drink, Read, Mourn

New York, Feb. 4.—Business sermon of the day:

"Joel 1.5—Awake, ye that are drunk and weep, and mourn all ye that take delight in drinking sweet wine; for it is cut off from your mouth."

At Hackensack, New Jersey, U. S. A., today, Friday, A. C. Hart poured $2,000 worth of wine and whiskey into the gutter.

The liquor recently was seized in a raid on a hoist at Hasbrouck Heights. The county now has on hand about $30,000 worth of seized liquor and is seeking legislation whereby it may be diverted for the use of hospitals instead of being destroyed.

BRADY TO WAGE FIGHT AGAINST 'BLUE LAWS'

Producer Threatens to Use Movies as Weapon to Rout Censorship Advocates

Chicago, Feb. 4. William A. Brady president of the National Association of the motion picture industry, issued a warning to "blue law" advocates on his arrival to take a hand in the fight against the proposed rigid censorship here.

The motion picture industry pays over $1,000,000 patrons daily. Mr. Brady said. "Blue law men used [illegible] of the public [illegible] they were formed to [illegible] as a [illegible] we will [illegible] if necessary, and there is not a thing that can touch the movies.

"The blue law advocates are shouting the Sunday movies as their object of attack as a starting point. They hope to extend the ban to all forms of a laity."

He is opposed to any censorship greater than police regulations on the ground the censors would set themselves up as the moral arbiters of the masses and give vent to the personal likes alone.

Mass censorship is un-American," he says, a word [illegible] should not apply to movies any more than it does to books, plays and newspapers.

Father Rescues Twins From Lynn Blaze

One tenant was severely burned about the arms and hands and twenty-two-months-old twins were rescued by their parents when thick smoke, originating from a fire in a preserve closet, threatened to cut off their escape at their home, No. 62 Linden street, Lynn.

Pron Kobakas, the owner of the dwelling was painfully burned while trying to extinguished the flames. He was rushed to the Lynn City Hospital.

Lonzen Hycks, who occupies the second floor, carried his twin girls from the building and led his wife to safety.

Kobaka's wife ran from the building when the fire was discovered.

Mrs Hycks reamed when she discovered smoke pouring into her kitchen. Her cries attracted the attention of her husband, who was in the cellar. Seizing the children and ordering his wife to follow him he picked his way through the fire and smoke to a corridor, and then to the street.

Kobakas was ignorant of the fire until he heard the commotion made by the other tenants. He rushed into the hallway and directly in the path of the fire which was confined to a closet under the stairs. He fought successfully to beat the flames out with his hands. Ida Snally managed to reach the street.

The damage to the structure is estimated at $2,500. The fire is believed to have started from a dropped match. Nearly the entire building was consumed.

TAX ADVICE TO OWNERS OF PROPERTY

Collector Mitchell Says Rent From Business Premises May Be Deducted

Internal Revenue Collector John J. Mitchell today issued some advice to small taxpayers and owners of property as regards what items are allowable as deductions when they are making out their tax returns. His advice is intended to obviate delays in readjustments later.

"Advertising commissions," said the collector, "to agents and other costs incident to securing tenants for property held for renting purposes, may be deducted from the gross income together with the expenses for maintenance. If the owner occupies a portion of the building as his dwelling the expenses must be apportioned and only those relating to that part of the property rented may be deducted. A tenant may deduct the rent paid for business premises, but not for his home, which is a personal or living expense.

"The cost of erecting buildings or permanent improvements on ground leased is additional rental and, therefore, deductable from gross income provided the buildings and improvements revert to the owner at the expiration of a lease. The cost of such improvement may be prorated over the term of the lease so that a proportional amount may be deducted each year. No allowance of deduction is made for depreciation, but cost of the ordinary repairs is an allowable item."

Ideal Motorist Has a Face Like This

Have you, Mr or Mrs. Motorist, high cheek bones and a bulging forehead?

If not, you really should be restrained from driving your car, according to Dr Holmes W. Morton, New York phrenologist and psychologist.

In fact, if he has his way you will be restrained for he wants examiners of applicants for licenses to apply the cheek bone and forehead test in every case.

If your cheek bones aren't much, therefore, and your forehead bulged in the wrong direction, or refuses to bulge at all, prepare to defend yourself.

High cheek bones and the bulge over the eyebrows are only the outward signs of mental ability and capacity to drive a machine and indicate a careful and conscientious driver, says Dr Morton.

They indicate vigilance, caution, a sense of motion form, and a quick observing eye. No motorist is complete without them.

He bolsters up his claim with learned scientific arguments and urges those who execute the automobile laws to take him seriously.

If his ideas are adopted in Massachusetts you will not merely be questioned as to your ability to drive a machine and compelled to give a demonstration.

But the examiners will put you through a close inspection as to the condition and shape of your "zygomatic arch," your "malar bone" and other parts of your cranium you didn't know you possessed.

But in simple words they will be looking for bulging forehead and high cheek bones.

The bulge in the brow, Dr Morton states, is what "registers" a man's sense of distance and ability to thread his way through crowded city streets in an automobile.

Caution is indicated by the eyebrows, and experts in character analysis say that they can almost weigh the amount of caution in an applicant's make-up by this sign.

In conclusion, the proposer of the new test for motorists says, "In other words the capable chauffeur should impress the observer as having high cheek bones and a slight bulge of the forehead over the eyebrow.

"It is difficult to convey the idea clearly without a chart or illustration, but a few moments' study of such charts would make the matter perfectly plain. Such character analysis could, it seems to me, be utilized in granting licenses, a matter affecting the safety of all."

B. A. A. MEET TO BRING OUT THE BEST LONG DISTANCE MEN

POOR SHOWING AT OLYMPICS STIRS AMERICAN ATHLETES

BY CHARLES E. PARKER.

An effort to improve America's record in long distance running will be inaugurated tomorrow night in the B. A. A. games at the Boston Arena.

For a nation generally regarded as the foremost athletic nation in the world, we can boast only the saddest of records in international competition over distances greater than the mile or the 1,500-meter runs.

In fact our only international achievement of note dates back more than a decade in the time when Johnny Hayes won the triumph Marathon at London and even in that instance it really is overcompared to all that is going on at present. Hayes up to the final turn on the Stadium track where he collapsed.

In our most recent attempts effort not only did we fail miserably in distances greater than the 1,500 meter run, but we failed to win even the 1,500-meter, or the old mile, to the 800-meter and while reasons can and have been offered for the showing the latter events it was clearly shown in the longer races of the Antwerp Olympiad as well as in the Stockholm and London games that Americans must improve their ability in such events if we are to maintain our position as leading athletic nation.

Agree Distance Men Should Be Encouraged

It was generally agreed by those with the best interest of our athletic prestige at heart that greater encouragement should be given our long distance runners, and better opportunity of developing newcomers in the long distance game and Gardner Wilson of the B. A. A. inaugurated such a scheme by offering a cup as a traveling trophy for the winner of a three-mile run, which run was to be held each year in the annual B. A. A. meet.

The event and the prize offered has brought out a decidedly able field of contenders. Walter Hess, a Cornell University runner who is fast becoming himself one of the best distance men ever produced in this country, Gordon T. Nightingale, who is conceded to be the best all-around long distance man in the country, was undoubtedly our best three-mile runner last year, with a record out of defeat of F. A. Metzinger of Syracuse, who has included on the list of starters, and a few such as Alan Helffrich, who showed in a B. A. A. meet seems assured.

Cutbill Picked to Win Hunter Mile

Harvard relay stock was boosted when a statement was made that Tony Campbell, Yale cross-country miler, may not run anchor for the Eli team in its two mile duel with the Crimson. Campbell was figured as the one man who could bring the Elis home in front of their Harvard rivals and while Yale still possesses a mighty able two mile quartet, it is sure to miss Campbell.

Harold Cutbill, "the flying parson," is being picked by many as the probable winner of the Hunter Mile cup, a remarkable performance in view of the fact that he has run at the Brooklyn games recently is chiefly responsible for this favor.

Their Favorite Sport--and Why

No. 5

MICHAEL H. CROWLEY,
Superintendent Boston Police.

My favorite sport is baseball.

I believe it is the greatest of all sports, for it is equally beneficial, physically and mentally, to the player and spectator.

There is nothing, to my mind, that will spruce up a fagged out brain and tired body, like squatting under the hot sun in some park and witnessing a baseball game.

My duties have prevented me from attending games during the past three years but I am hoping things will let up so that I will be enabled to see a game or two this Summer.

Band Jar games, where the kids battle both ways until dark, are the ones I prefer.

BRITT BATTLES MICKEY DEVINE AT PROVIDENCE

Lightweights Meet at Show Conducted for Benefit of Firemen Recently Killed

Providence, Feb. 4—Frankie Britt of New Bedford is matched to meet Mickey Devine, lightweight champion of Rhode Island, in the main bout of the show to be held in Infantry Hall tonight under the auspices of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. Devine has rounded into good shape since he lost a decision to Peter Hartley and is expected to give Britt a good battle.

In the semi-final, Young Kansas of this city will meet Paddy Owens of Boston. Both banjams are good and if the local boy succeeds in beating Owens he will be in line for some fights with the first raters.

Frankie Ryan of Dawtucket will do battle with Jack O'Leary of Boston and the curtain raiser will be between Young Frew of Woonsocket and Young Kilbane of Providence. The proceeds of the bout will be donated to the fund being raised for the families of the firemen who were killed and injured in the Washington street fire early Monday morning.

Jack Twin Now Has Title Hopes

Jack (Twin) Sullivan has hopes of winning the New England heavyweight championship despite the fact he's forty-one years of age. The brilliant boxer points to the fact that Bob Fitzsimmons was forty-two when he knocked out Jim Corbett. Sullivan will start his new ring drive when he clashes with George Robinson of Cambridge in a ten-round bout at the Armory A. A.'s show at Mechanics Building next Tuesday night. Jack's remarkable ability as a boxer leads many to believe he will conquer Robinson.

Fred Fulton will battle Battling McCreary in another ten-goes on affair while Sailor (Ed) Trombly is booked to oppose Young Jack Johnson.

SHOE TRADES IN FIRST LOCAL VICTORY

Skilton's Team Easily Defeats B. C. at Arena; Urban's Work in Goal Keeps Score Down

Raymie Skilton's Shoe Trades team pegged seven goals into the Boston College net while only one counter was being tallied by the Maroon and Gold, and by so doing Skilton's team gained its first victory at the Arena.

The game was a combination of six-man and seven-man hockey. The teams employed seven-man lineups in the first and third periods and six-man lineups in the second session of play.

Throughout the contest Skilton's men outclassed the collegians, and only the very excellent goal tending exhibition by Luke Urban, who stopped more than thirty well-aimed shots, prevented the Shoe Trades from carrying its points into double figures. The fact that Captain Leo Hughes of B. C. was handicapped by an injured knee, and could play only fared the margin of victory.

a portion of the game, weakened B. C. team, but it is doubtful if active presence and play throughout the game would have materially

About Mr. Willard

If Jess Willard has all the money he is quoted as claiming to possess, he ought to be required to fight Jack Dempsey on the basis that he gets nothing if he loses.

Here he is, a ponderous, gray-haired gentleman, rising forty years old, seeking to appear before spectators from whom admission fees will be exacted, animated, according to his own story, by no other motive than a certain pride.

Willard's statement does not hold water.

He always posed as disliking the prize ring, and fighting only because he needed the money.

When he was whipped at Toledo, he said he was through with the game forever. All he desired was to retire to his Kansas possessions, and to be let alone.

Here he is now, suggesting he was whipped at Toledo through accident. He does not want the money from a return match, he says, but merely the title. To gratify his title desire, the public will be invited to contribute money to the box office.

What guarantee does Willard offer that he will not make the same miserable showing he made at Toledo? None that we have heard of.

Has he offered to pit himself against some lesser ring light to prove that he can fight even a little bit? We haven't heard of it.

We don't mind Mr. Willard getting the money, but we do wish to be placed on record as objecting to him insulting our intelligence.

Stories of Famous Fights

Erne Wins World's Title

This is the twenty-eighth of a series of "Old-Time Fights," written by authorities on pugilism who were famous in their day. Others will follow.

This tale is of the night in New York, Nov. 27, 1906, when Frank Erne wrested the world's featherweight title from George Dixon. The bout went to the allotted twenty rounds, and at the finish Referee Sam Austin gave the decision to Erne. The verdict was well received by the crowd, but was a blow to Dixon and his followers, who bet on "Little Chocolate," laying 10 to 7 against Erne.

The King is dead; long live the King!

Frank Erne of Buffalo is the featherweight champion of the world. He defeated George Dixon, the hitherto champion, in twenty rounds of the prettiest and cleverest kind of fighting ever seen in this vicinity in the arena of the Broadway Athletic Club last night.

It was a clever fight from start to finish, and Erne impressed the crowd as a winner after the very first round. Dixon appeared drawn too fine, while Erne was very strong at every stage of the contest.

Dixon Badly Beaten Up

Dixon was badly used up. He had both eyes closed and two deep gashes under the left optic. His nose and ears were all puffed. Erne, on the other hand, didn't bear a mark or a bruise and retired from the ring almost as fresh as when he entered.

When the twentieth round came around both boys were out to try and furnish a whirlwind finish. Erne at this time appeared to be at his best, while Dixon lacked dash. Erne got in a roasting left to the face, but Dixon pounded the wind. Erne was on top of him punching him right and left when Dixon clinched, punching him deliberately below the belt.

Erne in Whirlwind Finish

Erne just shoved him off and landed three hard rights to the body, after which he landed a right and left on Dixon's head. The latter countered heavily with both hands. Erne drove his left to the wind and to the face hard, Dixon smashing the wind. Erne jolted Dixon's jaw with his left just as the bell sounded.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED

HENRY CALVERLY, famous young writer, serves six months in jail for "obstructing justice" in connection with the murder of his mother-in-law. His wife dies and when he is released he disappears, taking the name of

HUGH STAFFORD. Several years later he finds employment on a Western newspaper, where he is recognized by

MARGIE DAW, a reporter. She tells

MR. HITT, who has charge of the reference room at the paper. Mr. Hitt reads up on the history of Claverly and revives his record as a writer. Then he sighs and prepares to study the life of "James H. Cantor," whose family are considering having a biography written.

CHAPTER II.—Continued

HE went across town to the Central Postoffice, walking more and more rapidly, his face drawn with nervous tension. He was in a perspiration when he reached the grimy old building. At the general delivery window he asked if there was mail for Mr. Calverly.

The clerk gave a slight start, looked narrowly at him, and as he turned away to the box, knit his brows as one does who tries to recapture a half-lost bit of memory. He returned with a letter.

It was addressed in a familiar hand—small clear, almost like print. Henry turned it over. The back stamp was nearly forty-eight hours old. Then he felt the clerk's eyes on him and hurried away. He opened the letter on the street.

It read

"Dear Old Hen! It was great to hear from you. I haven't time to write a letter now, but perhaps can do better. Have to be in Cincinnati on the 14th. Will take train arriving your town, Union Station, 10.50 p. m. on the 13th. Will be there about an hour if on time, taking Cincinnati train at 12.01. Write here. We'll have a few minutes' chat anyway.

"Yours as ever,

"T. W."

He carefully tore up note and envelope into small bits and dropped them in a street-sweeper's card. The color was rising in his face.

He wondered, on the way back to the office if he could get away if it were too late to telegraph, of course. Without that message he wondered would his friend come?

Humphrey Weaver—tall, lean well-kept carrying his own base through the swarm of porters—came deliberately down the platform, his swarthy face wrinkling into a grin that faded a little at his quick gaze from the thin figure in the wrinkled old suit.

They sat in the waiting-room and tried to talk. But there were difficulties.

They had been friends years back, in Sunbury, Illinois. Humphrey had taken the part of a forlorn waif—a little, like the unhappy situation he was in today. They had lived together for a year or so. Together they had bought the Sunbury Weekly Gleaner, to sell it later when Henry's success and his marriage, and an unfortunate love affair of Humphrey's caused both to lose interest in it.

From his boyhood Humphrey Weaver had been a mechanical. With a little more capital he might have succeeded in flying. He did work wonders in improving the Chanute gliders, and early mastered the gas engine, besides conducting curious and interesting experiments in the principles of aviation as they might be applied to automatic devices for swinging electric fans. His first successes had been with these appliances. Since then he had sold a number of inventions and had come to be a director in several holding and merchandising companies. In years he was now approaching the middle thirties. He had the air of a man who, as we say, has struck his gait. There was nothing cheaply expansive about him. He didn't drink. He was a student, a worker, not a salesman or a trader. He was calm, thoughtful, even sober. Yet, the prosperity could not be denied. It came between the two old friends now in a way that neither could control. The older man sat back, soberly [illegible] his words. The younger man grew even more moody, silent, lost in that wilderness within his breast where his spirit had wandered for years.

Each of them as they sat there, fumbling about for something that might be common tender among all the confused coinage of speech, felt the gulf between them; and each, too, felt the hopeless nature of his individual effort to bridge it. Fate had touched them differently, that was all.

Humphrey was casting about in his mind for some verbal approach to the problem of offering money, but could find none. This had come between them before since the trial.

He did manage to ask:

"How'd you happen to come here?"

"Oh, I don't know. I was looking over the ads one day. It's as good a town as the next. They—they don't know me here."

"Tell me what you're doing, Hen."

"Working on a paper."

"What one?"

"The—o, it doesn't matter."

"But . . . Are you fixed all right? I mean—living arrangements, all that?"

"Oh, yes. Boarding-house."

"Hmm! I hope you're comfortable, Hen. I've noticed that the men I see now, the men who are handling big things, make a great point of taking care of themselves, having themselves pretty important to keep the nerves and muscles in trim. Do you get much exercise?"

"Oh, I Walk Some."

"Oh, I walk some."

"No golf, or tennis, or—" Humphrey faltered here. His eyes were again taking in the shabby suit. He had forgotten that tennis and golf mean an income, that the clothing and outfits and club connections carry with them a distinct upper-class implication.

His old friend recognized the pause only with a lifeless gesture.

"Well—I wish there was time for a real visit, Hen. We've got a little getting acquainted to do; some checking up. I'm going to try to plan another trip here. I'm pretty busy. We'll have a few minutes' chat anyway.

SITTING, mind comfortably at ease, after your good wife's dinner of chicken and golden dumplings, glancing now and then at the little girl that so little a while ago was a baby, cowrapped in the comfort of browsing through headlines and knowing that none of their black trouble touches you and yours, mind and heart, after a hard day's milling about—almost a pleasant blank—massalled by disturbing situations.

Trouble himself shut out of the door, in the snow, you never dream what's under the soft mane of hair that falls over your little daughter's faint face. You'd know if you remembered how you wanted to be a cab-driver, or an acrobat (both were so delectable that you could not choose) when you were her age

Then you'd know that that long young flapper with her black legs folded perliously up under her, her back that worries her mother with its round shoulders, humped in an arch, her thumb in her mouth when it is not flourished to sweep her curtain of hair out of her eyes and mouth, you'd know this—that the dearest dream of her heart is herself in a French petticoat—a bodice held on with tiny jwels, feathers in her bobbed hair (horrors—her treasured hair), three-inch heels, prancing little silken legs, a gay little song rasping out of her crimsoned lips, a thirs of glitter and gleam and flash and dash—herself—the best of Broadway whirling into the magic cresent of the footlichts—a star—a dancer!

But you never think it—to look at that solemn, comical, sky-eyed little colt of yours —NELL BRINKLEY.

CHAPTER XXIII

The Choice

PONDERING over Alison's note, he suddenly recalled and verified some phrase which had struck him that summer on reading Harnack's celebrated History of Dogma, and around these he framed his reply. "To act as if faith in eternal life and in the living Christ was the simplest thing in the world, or a dogma to which one has to submit, is irreligious. . . . It is Christian to pray that God would give the Spirit to make us strong to overcome the feeling and doubts of nature. . . . Where this faith, obtained in this way, exists, it has always been supported by the conviction that the Man lives who brought life and immortality to light. To hold fast this faith is in this matter our own. What we think we possess is very soon lost."

"The feelings and the doubts of nature!" The Divine Discontent, the striving against the doubt that every honest soul experiences and admits. Thus the contrast between her and these others who accepted and went their several ways was brought home to him.

He longed to talk to her, but his days were full. Yet the very thought of her helped to bear him up as his trials, his problems accumulated; nor would he at any time have exchanged them for the false peace which had been brought (he perceived more and more clearly) at the price of compromise.

The worst of these trials, perhaps, was a conspicuous article in a newspaper containing a garbled account of his sermon and the sensation it had produced amongst his fashionable parishioners. He had refused to see the reporter, but he had been made out a hero, a socialistic champion of the poor. The black headlines were nauseating, and beside them, in juxtaposition, were pen portraits of himself and of Eldon Parr. There were rumors that the banker had left the church until the recalcitrant rector should be driven out of it; the usual long list of Mr. Parr's benefactions was included, and certain veiled paragraphs concerning his financial operations. Mr. Ferguson, Mr. Plimpton, Mr. Constable, did not escape—although they, too, had refused to be interviewed. . . . The article brought to the parish house a bevy of reporters who had to be fought off, and another batch of letters, many of them from members, in approval or condemnation.

His fellow-clergymen called, some to express sympathy and encouragement, more of them to voice in person indignant and horrified protests. Dr. Annesley of Calvary—a counterpart of whose rubicund face might have been found in the Council of Trent or in mediæval Sanhedrists—pronounced his anathemas with his hands folded comfortably over his stomach, but eventually threw to the winds every vestige of his ecclesiastical dignity . . .

Then there came a note from the old bishop, who was traveling. A kindly note, withal, if non-committal—to the effect that he had received certain communications, but that his physician would not permit him to return for another ten days or so. He would then be glad to see Mr. Hodder and talk with him

What would the bishop do? Hodder's relations with him had been more than friendly, but whether the bishop's views were sufficiently liberal to support him in the extreme stand he had taken he could not surmise. For it meant that the bishop, too, must enter into a conflict with the first layman of his diocese, of whose hospitality he had so often partaken, whose contributions had been on so lordly a scale. The bishop was in his seventieth year, and had hitherto successfully fought any attempt to supply him with an assistant—coadjutor or suffragan.

At such times the fear grew upon Hodder that he might be recommended for trial, forced to abandon his fight to free the church from the fetters that bound her; that the implacable hostility of his enemies would rob him of his opportunity.

Thus ties were broken, many hard things were said and brought to his ears. There were vacancies in the classes and guilds, absences that pained him, silences that wrung him. . . .

Of all the conversations he held, that with Mrs. Constable was perhaps the most illuminating and distressing. As on that other occasion when he had gone to her, this visit was under the seal of confession, unknown to her husband. And Hodder had been taken aback, on seeing her enter his office, by the very tragedy in her face—the tragedy he had momentarily beheld once before. He drew up a chair for her, and when she had sat down she gazed at him some moments without speaking

"I had to come," she said, "there are some things I feel I must ask you. For I have been very miserable since I heard you Sunday."

He nodded gently.

"I knew that you would change your views—become broader, greater. You remember that I predicted it."

"Yes," he said

"I thought you would grow more liberal, less bigoted, if you will allow me to say so. But I didn't anticipate—" she hesitated, and looked at him again.

"That I would take the extreme position I have taken," he assisted her.

"Oh, Mr. Hodder," she cried impulsively, "was it necessary to go so far and at once? I am here not only because I am miserable, but I am concerned on your account. You hurt me very much that day you came to me, but you made me your friend. And I wonder if you can really understand the terrible, bitter feeling you have aroused, the powerful enemies you have made by speaking so—so unreservedly?"

"I was prepared for it," he answered. "Surely, Mrs. Constable, once I have arrived at what I believe to be the truth, you would not have me temporize?"

She gave him a wan smile.

"In one respect, at least, you have not changed," she told him. "I am afraid you are not the temporizing kind. But wasn't there—may not there still be a way to deal with this fearful situation? You have made it very hard for us—for them. You have given them no loopholes of escape. And there are many, like me, who do not wish to see your career ruined, Mr. Hodder."

"Would you prefer," he asked, "to see my soul destroyed? And your own?"

Her lips twitched.

Years ago in a small town I was sent to the store for several pounds of potatoes. The woman who waited on me had difficulty in striking the exact weight, due to the fact that all of the potatoes seemed to be of uniformly large size. After several unsuccessful attempts to adjust the difference of a few ounces, she found a way out of her dilemma by cutting a potato in halves, returning one-half to her stock. PETER THROCKMORTON was stretched, with a desperate kind of wretchedness that until lately had been unknown to him.

The fact that he was in debt wore upon him, particularly as his father's recent sternness precluded any likelihood of his "coming across" as the son had hoped he would.

But even this bore more lightly upon his spirits than did Thora's behavior. He saw her seldom.

"You remind me of a telephone number than I want in a hurry," he told her one day with an effort at jocoseness. "You are always busy."

"As you ought to be!" she declared. "I am so fortunate as to have a job to hold down six evenings and two afternoons every week. I was dead lucky to get engaged for this show—and I'm going to stick at it or bust!"

She laughed, yet he saw that she was resolute.

Of course he was glad for her that she had made such a hit last Winter, that she had been engaged for a new musical comedy for this season. Yet he wondered, if she had less to do, if she would not be more willing to see him.

He squirmed inwardly under her frequent suggestions that he should be at work. Naturally, he could see her viewpoint in a way, yet one more Winter on an allowance would not mean that he was a loafer.

He had thought seriously of looking for a job, but the sort he wanted was not easy to obtain. He shrank to start on a salary that would make marriage possible

Wants to Start High

"I will not begin on an office boy's pay," he said to his sister when she suggested his applying for a position. "The idea of Rufus Throckmorton's son doing that!"

She eyed-ed him sombrely "Well Pierre, you know that Dad has talked of opening a branch office here in New York. He said you could go into that and learn the business. Then, later you might be at the head of a New York store if it paid enough to keep him."

"Start as a shoe clerk, sh!" Peter exclaimed angrily. "Father proposed it to me the possibility of having a small office here, where orders could be taken, samples shown and that kind of thing for the Sunbury trade. A nice kind of situation for a gentleman, showing samples of cobblers' wares. Molly, you'd hate to tell the Lawrences or the Haights, or any of that bunch, that your brother was learning the shoe business. No," he added, "that I give a d—— for any of that crowd in a way But, to tell the truth Molly, I must make money fast. I have been spending it and have established a reputation for spending it and for having lots of it. And I won't come down to the Job-Father would put me at!"

The girl shook her head. "It's too bad, she mused aloud, "that Dad takes the attitude he does. Only Winter more would make us so secure in New York."

"Of course it would!" Peter agreed with vehemence. "If he would only finance me—I mean would only pay my debts and start me in a really lucrative line of business. There are plenty of men who would take me in if I brought a lot of capital with me."

Mary sighed. "Well, I am sorry for you, Pierre—but I don't see what I can do."

Easy for Mary

"Oh—you're all right!" Peter I marked, envyously. "You have nothing to do except dress like a fashion plate, entertain and continue to be a success in society—then marry some swell and settle down to life'"

"Thanks!" Mary said dryly.

"But," Peter added, "I hope the man will not be Lewis Sheldon."

"It won't," Mary affirmed confidently. "I've done with him. And," she supplemented as an afterthought, "I have not the least idea who it will be."

"Molly—why not Mort?" Peter asked, for the moment forgetting his own hard luck in his sister's future.

"Because he's done with me!" were the words that sprang to the girl's lips. But she bit them back. "You do not understand, Pierre," she said. "There's nothing doing there, either"

Peter thrust his hands into his pockets and went out. The whole world was awry A sudden sense of bravado seized him.

He would see Tora Dale tonight. She had refused to take supper with him lately. If he waylaid her at the door of the playhouse and told her that he had just made enough money on the side to take her for supper somewhere she would believe him

He had not been in the habit of lying to her. Something had deterred him. He stopped it was he uprightness and honesty. Well desperate diseases demanded desperate remedies, and he was desperate tonight

He went back to his sister's room. She was all dressed ready to go to a theatre party with Mrs. Hinkins and Rensselaers Young Reginald Haight had called upon her several times lately He was a nice boy, but she was "getting even" with Irene Lawrence in receiving him

"Molly," Peter said now, "lend me twenty-five dollars, will you? I have only five with me and I need some cash tonight."

"Certainly," the sister agreed heartily, opening her gold mesh-bag "I can let you have it without the least trouble. For Dad gave me a fat roll of bank notes only this afternoon."

Simplifying the Home

By Loretta C. Lynch,

Acknowledged Authority on All Matters Pertaining to Household Management.

IN our landscape cities, and especially where rents are high, there is a decided movement to have rooms suited to more than one purpose.

The better apartments, consisting of three or four rooms, are in great demand if suitable arrangement is possible. The living room is so decorated and furnished that it makes a delightful place to dine as well. One apartment which I saw recently consisted of four rooms and was to be used by three people. There was an all-white kitchen with washable walls of creamy yellow. The buffets features—such as cabinet, icebox and washtube—were of snowy white washable finish. There was a charming breakfast nook with the necessary built-in features. In this way the kitchen was a three-purpose room. It served as a laundry, a breakfast room as well as a kitchen.

In this particular family two of the three people were not to work by day The housewife was a delicate little woman who had many days when she was especially unable to do much housework When she realized the rather permanent nature of her physical condition she did the very sensible thing of setting up her seven-room home and taking this smaller one

A combination living-dining-room can be made a thing of beauty and real usefulness by careful furnishing. It may be made to disclose itself as a makeshift. The treatment of the walls should be made the first consideration. The very latest idea in walls is to have them finished in a neutral shade of lusterless, washable paint. A grayish or creamy brown tone makes a suitable background for almost any furniture. The plainness of the wall makes it possible to use either plain or figured hangings.

The little home of which I speak had a most attractive living room. It was a bit out of the ordinary, and any clever woman can adapt the description to her particular need. The walls were finished in a neutral gray. Likewise, the woodwork was finished in a somewhat lighter shade of gray. Set against the walls were candelabra of silver finish, in groups of two. These had silken shades of old rose.

The rug was of Chinese blue in a typical Chinese design. This rug was a very reasonable price, and although it was the finest of this type, it cost but a fraction of the price of a real Oriental.

Rules Governing Movie Player Identity Test

The Boston American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser's new Movies Picture Players' Identification Test is a test of skill and judgment open to all readers of the Boston American and Boston Sunday Advertiser, irrespective of age, living in any city or town in New England or Canada.

Two hundred and nineteen cash awards will be given by these two newspapers to their readers who submit the largest percentage of correct identifications in the 120 pictures to be published in these two newspapers.

All employes of the Boston American, the Boston Sunday Advertiser, and their families, Boston Sunday Advertiser pictures players and persons and all moving picture industry connected with the moving picture industry are absolutely barred from participating in the awards.

The Test will consist of 120 pictures of favorite moving picture players, to be printed one each day, in the Boston American and Boston Sunday Advertiser, first picture Sunday, December 19, 1920.

Participation in any other contest which has been run, which is now running or which shall be run by the Boston American or the Boston Sunday Advertiser will not debar anyone from entering this Test.

Every participant or any or all members of a family will be allowed to submit one set of pictures, but each set must contain only ONE identification to each picture, and no participant shall be entitled to more than one award, and not more than one award shall be given in any one family.

Each and every identification must be neatly written or printed on the coupon furnished by the Boston American or Boston Sunday Advertiser or on a piece of some book form by itself, accompanied either by the picture furnished by the Boston American or Boston Sunday Advertiser, or a pen or pencil copy thereof, and must have the name, residence, etc., of the participant on each identification blank.

Do not send your identification in "list" form; i. e., do not write identifications under one another on a piece of paper.

In case there are no complete sets of correct identifications, awards will be given to the persons submitting the largest percentages of correct identifications.

In case of a tie awards will be made on the basis of neatness, fairness and speed of letter in mailing, but if the tie cannot be decided in that way, the tied participants will receive similar awards.

Under no circumstances should participants send in their identifications before the end of the Test, as any sent in before the last picture is printed will not be considered. KEEP your identifications from day to day and at the end of the Test arrange them in numerical order and then send them in all together at one time.

Time will not be a factor in making the awards. The first identifications sent in after the Test closes will stand no better than the last submitted.

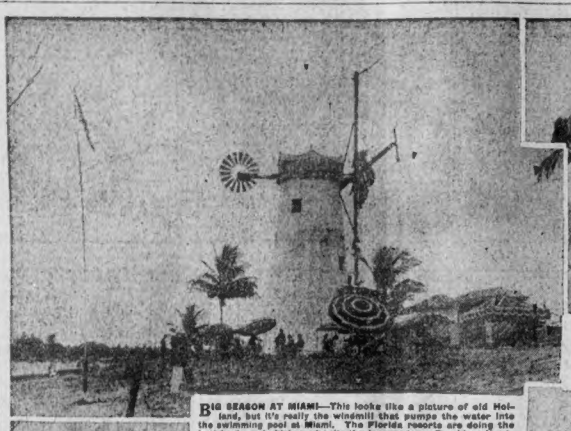
All identifications must be delivered to the Boston American Movie Test Headquarters, 44 Na, 80 Summer street, Boston 8, Mass., either by mail or in person within specified time limit, which will be announced later.

All envelopes or packages containing identifications must be legibly addressed as follower "Movie Test Editor, No. 80 Summer street, Boston 8, Mass., P. O. Box 250," and each envelope or package must bear the name and address of the sender legibly written or stamped on the upper left-hand corner.

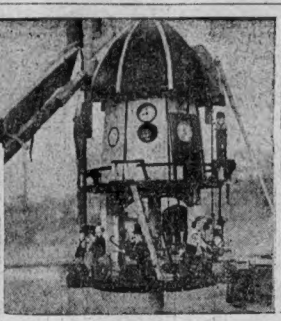
As all identifications will contain written or printed matter, it is absolutely necessary that the packages be fully prepaid at postal letter rates, as mail of this character goes in the postoffice as first class matter. The Boston American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser reserve the right to refuse to consider any sets of identifications on which charges for postal delivery are not fully prepaid.

Participants who desire further information should address their inquiries to the Movie Test Editor, No. 80 Summer street, Boston 8, Mass. Questions will be answered, as far as possible, through the columns of the Boston American or the Boston Sunday Advertiser. If participants desire personal replies, they should enclose sufficient postage for such reply, or they may phone Main 6180, or call in person.

The Boston American or the Boston Sunday Advertiser reserves the right to make any changes in, or addition to, these conditions that may be deemed necessary for fairly and properly conducting the test, and the decision of the Boston American Movie Test Editor on any question which may arise will be absolutely final, and the entry of a participant is a complete acceptance of all conditions now made or to be made.



THEY WORK WHEN THE WIND BLOWS—Little hand-carved marionettes perform odd jobs at the base of this Dutch windmill when the wind blows. Fritz Meisner of Nutley, N. J., completed this mill in 10 months. "Pa" watches the gang at work from the window in the lower. (c) K. & H.

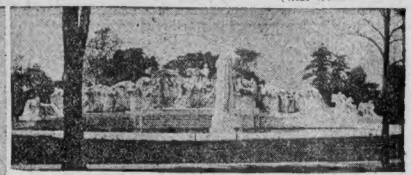


EGYPTIAN GOVERNMENT PROGRESSIVE — First photograph to reach America of official activities since Sultan's appointment. Photo shows two ministers investigating agricultural school. (Wide World.)

BIG SEASON AT MIAMI—This looks like a picture of old Holland, but it's really the windmill that pumps the water into the swimming pool at Miami. The Florida resorts are doing the best business in history, despite the income tax. President Harding is spending a part of his vacation at Miami. The hotels are filled to the roofs. —(c) K. & H.

ROSALINE AT SEA. Miss Rosaline Kendall of Louisville, Chicago and Palm Beach. She posed for a bundle of pictures and DID want one taken in the water. Modest girl. Wanted stocking up first.

GERMANY AT PEACE—This pretty frauline is using a wood splitter made of her brother's bayonet. She believes that it is much more useful in this capacity than reposing on the parlor wall as a relic. We note that Bertha's ears are showing in almost shameless fashion. Or is it perfectly proper to show "em" in Germany? (Central News.) (c) U. & U.



FOUNTAIN OF TIME—Group statue by Torado Taft. To be erected at Chicago. Has 100 figures and is 100 feet long. Time, in foreground, sees Humanity emerge from Mystery at right, attain its height of Power in centre and pass on into Mystery again at the left. (Wide World Photos)

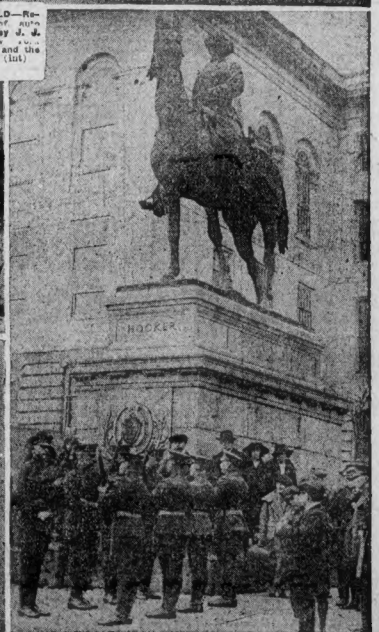
BLIND STUDENT WEDS TEACHER—Sam Bean, deaf, dumb and blind, married his teacher, Miss Maud Woodworth, after ardently wooing her in the touch language. There is an old saying to the effect that love is blind, but Mr. Bean is not only blind but a poet as well. The happy couple are living in Alameda, California. (International)

ROUNDS! FEN DUBBS!—Knuckle Down! The girls at the Washington Seminary at Atlanta, Georgia, have taken up marbles as a pastime. These three are the campus champs. (U. & U.)



YOU SHOULD SEE THE OTHER FELLOW!—The street car which struck this automobile left the tracks and turned over in a vacant lot. The automobile proceeded on its way, sans rear wheels, for 100 feet with the woman driver still at the steering wheel. Six of the persons in the street car were injured, but the woman in the auto was only shaken up. (U. & U.)

MODERNIZING THE HUNT—Chasing wild elephants over the veldt lands of South Africa is great sport, according to Major Jackson Allen, big game hunter. The veldt lands are isolated, but Major Allen solved the problem of transporting the motorcycle to the scene of the hunt by using a domestic elephant as common carrier. The photo shows Major and motorcycle starting for the veldt. (Int.)

AMERICANS ALL!—Six of the eight members of the "Americans All" squad from Camp Dix were foreign born. The photograph was taken the other day in front of the monument of General "Joe" Hooker at the Boston State House. The occasion was a demonstration of the result of the Americanization work of the U. S. Army at the Americanization Congress of the Legion. (c) U. & U.

TURN HAIR DARK WITH SAGE TEA

Grandma kept her locks dark, glossy and youthful with a simple mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur.

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's recipe, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product, improved by the addition of other ingredients called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moistens your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive. This ready-to-use preparation is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire a more youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.—Advertisement.

Why Titles of Famous Stories Are Changed in Film Adaptations

By FRIEDA DAVIS.

ONE of the reasons given for adapting books to well-known stage plays to the screen is that the publicity already given them is an asset in promoting interest in the films. If so, why do the producers invariably change the titles?

Several years ago Mary Roberts Rinehart's novel, "K," had great popularity. While the story was by no means in her best vein, yet its theme caused a great deal of talk at the time it was published. Considering all this, what prompted the producers of the film adaptation of this story to call it "The Doctor and the Woman?"

Ben Ames Williams' story, "More Stately Mansions," is being filmed under the garish title of "Are Wives to Blame?"; Sir Arthur Wing Pinero's play, "The Profligate," became the "The Truth About Husbands"; and even Cecil DeMille filmed Barrie's plece, "The Admirable Crichton" as "Male and Female." Are these titles really box office assets? Don't they keep as many people away from the theatres as they bring into it?

"AFFAIRS OF ANATOLE"

There have been changes in titles that have been improvements on the originals. For instance, when Mary Pickford filmed Rhida Adams' stage success, "Op O' My Thumb," last year she changed the name to "The Duchess of Suda" and later to "Suda." This was easier to say and better for publicity purposes in every way, and it hit the nail on the head as regards the picture itself. It gave a more vivid impression of the story as Mary Pickford put it on.

At present Arthur Schnitzler's play, "The Affairs of Anatole," is being filmed in Hollywood. It was started under that name, then changed to "Five Kisses." Still there was some doubt as to which which was the better title.

To settle the question Famous Players sent out word to theatre managers throughout the country, asking them to find out from the fans which name was most popular and which was a greater drawing card. Of 1,327 exhibitors, 1,019 voted for the original name.

WHAT LASKY SAYS.

Jesse Lasky, head of the Famous Players corporation, has this to say regarding the changing of titles.

"Up to the past year motion pictures were looked upon as appealing to the more unsophisticated and less cultured, but during the last two years there has been such a decided change for the better in the production of films that everybody, from college professors to shop girls are fans.

"It is natural, therefore, that as the tastes of audiences improve the demand for sensational titles must relax. The film public now wants titles of dignity and tradition. Book and theatre lovers want to see their favorite stories and plays given as they know them and want to know where they are and when.

FILM PLAYERS ON STAGE.

OUT in Hollywood the film players have organized a repertoire Theatre. Most of them have appeared on the stage at some time in their careers and have put on several of their former successes as well as adaptations of their films.

This Hollywood Community Theatre is carried on entirely by the film players who chooses the pieces, cast them, and put them on.

The attraction there at present is Stephen Phillips' drama, "Paolo and Francesca." In which Conrad Nagle and Helen Jerome Eddy play the leading roles.

PETERS WANTS OWN COMPANY

HOUSE PETERS has confessed that his greatest ambition is to have his own company. He wants to run it in his own way, pick his stories and hit and relief from catarrh, coughs, sore throat, or cold will come in two minutes.

Breathe Hyomei and that stomach straining hawking in the morning will quickly disappear.

Breathe Hyomei and kill the catarrh germs; heal the inflamed membrane, stop the discharge of mucus and prevent crusts from forming in the nose.

Breathe Hyomei—give it faithful trial and then, if you are not satisfied, you can have your money back.

SUPREME

NAZIMOVA.

NOW and then an actress comes up who becomes so famous and who impresses her personality so strongly on the public that she is called by her last name only. It is one of the signs of supremacy. We have had few of them so far, Siddons, Bernhardt, Duse and now Nazimova.

Hers has been a restless ambition. She has had from the beginning a definite aim, that of becoming an actress of the first magnitude. She wanted to play the big roles that have stood out in dramatic history, and she wanted to play them well, better than they had ever been played before. She wanted to understand them and feel them, and know that in order to do that she must cultivate her mind and must study and understand everything and everyone around her.

BORN IN RUSSIA.

Nazimova was born in Yalta, a small town in Russian Crimea, but as a small child she was taken to Switzerland, where she studied the violin. When she was twelve she returned to Russia and made her first public appearance by playing a violin solo at a Christmas concert in her native town. Later she went to Odessa to continue her studies, but took the dramatic course instead.

Her first stage appearance was under the direction of the great Stanislawsky at the Art Theatre in Moscow. This organization is one of the greatest and most thorough training courses in acting in the world.

As leading woman of a stock company there, she played nearly 200 parts in a wide variety of productions. For the most part these plays were of the modern, soul-stirring type usually given on the Russian stage, and it was then that she had her training in the emotional roles she plays so strongly and artistically.

RETURNS TO AMERICA.

Following this season of stock she became leading woman in the company of Paul Orlenoff, the Russian star. With him she played "Ligion," "Zare," "Camille," and several of Ibsen's dramas. After three seasons in Petrograd, the company went to England to play "The Lower Depths," and in 1906 Orlenoff brought his company to America, giving his plays in the Russian language.

This was not a complete success, and he returned to Russia. To Nazimova, however, America seemed the land of opportunity and she decided to stay in New York.

MRS. HARDING'S COLORS SHOWN AT SHEPARD'S

An exhibition that is attracting wide attention among fashionable folk is that now on display in the Tremont street windows of the Shepard Stores, showing the favorite shades of wearing apparel of President-elect Harding and Mrs. Harding.

The exhibit, which includes "Florence Harding Lavender," "Marion Blue," "Presidential Gray" and "Harding Blue," is the first seen in Boston of the favorite colors of the nation's next chief and his wife.

These shades are scheduled to become the most popular of the season. They are particularly pleasing in effect and will appeal to both young and old.

The shade designated by Mrs. Harding as "Florence Harding Lavender" is of a delightful orchid hue, and "Marion Blue" is a beautiful blue shade between an electric and a sapphire. The latter shade is especially adaptable for day wear.

Mr. Harding's shades, "Presidential Gray" and "Harding Blue," are both fetching and conservative. The exhibit at the Shepard Stores is tastefully arranged and displays the colors to excellent advantage.

This Appeal Merits a Hearty Response

The appeal which has gone out in the name of the Massachusetts Committee for Relief in Ireland will touch every American heart in this Commonwealth and meet—as it should meet—with generous and immediate response.

The public is assured by Chairman James J. Phelan, Treasurer Joseph H. O'Neil and Secretary John C. Heyer—names which MEAN something in this community—that the funds received will be forwarded to Ireland at once and there distributed promptly, irrespective of religious or political affiliations.

Everybody knows with what brutality, what barbarity and what spiteful and malignant persecution the oppressor today is trying to rivet the yoke upon the neck of unhappy Ireland.

As one of the results of this terrible campaign—and THIS is today's story—mothers, babies and the elderly in Ireland are without nourishment. The information which comes to the Massachusetts Committee is that women, and the very young and very old of both sexes, actually are STARVING.

This is the appeal, good friends, and we feel confident you will respond to it.

There are, we know very well, malevolent beings who would add the hateful words "except Ireland" to every declaration and every appeal made in the name of either Liberty or Charity.

Ireland's appeal, made in the honored names of Messrs. Phelan, O'Neil and Heyer, is not addressed to the stony-hearted, but to the compassionate. THEY will answer it with fervor. The address of Treasurer Joseph H. O'Neil is No. 166 Devonshire street, Boston. Let other things wait and send your FIRST offering NOW.

Arthur Lyman as Democratic Leader an Odd Choice

The newspapers report that Mr. Arthur Lyman, recently elected chairman of the Democratic State Committee, is a director in the following corporations:

American Telephone & Telegraph Company
Boston & Lowell Railroad Corporation
Brooklyn Associates
Brooklyn Development Company
Dwight Manufacturing Company
Fishur Manufacturing Company
Greylock Company
Greater New York Development Company
Lawrence Manufacturing Company
Massachusetts Cotton Mills
Merrimack Manufacturing Company
National Dock and Storage Warehouse Company
Old Colony Trust Company
Pacific Mills
Waltham Bleachery & Dye Works
Waltham Watch Company
Whittenton Manufacturing Company
Winthrop Mills
Workmen's Loan Association

Also president of the following:

Fisher Manufacturing Company
Merrimack Manufacturing Company
Waltham Bleachery & Dye Works
Whittenton Manufacturing Company
Workmen's Loan Association

Vice-president of the following:

Brooklyn Development Company
Greater New York Development Company
Suffolk Savings Bank for Seamen

Trustee of the following:

Boston Athenaeum
Boston Personal Property Trust
Boston Symphony Orchestra
Business Property Associates
Chicago Real Estate Trust
City Real Estate Trustees (Chicago)
Harvard Mutual Foundation
Merchants' Real Estate Trust
Minneapolis Real Estate Associates
Seattle Real Estate Associates
Second Duluth Real Estate Trust
State Street Associates.
St. Paul Business Real Estate Associates
Suffolk Savings Bank for Seamen
Wabash Avenue & Monroe Street (Chicago)
Waltham Hospital
Wood Harmon Real Estate Trustees

Now this does not mean that Mr. Lyman is not a good American citizen and an honest man, according to his lights, but it does mean that he has certain interests which make him a queer leader of the Democratic party.

Moreover, it does not mean that the Democrats ought never to accept as a leader men who have such connections, for such men can show by their deeds that they are not controlled by their interests in these connections. But where a man has never indicated in the whole course of rather a long life any opinions except such as might be expected of gentlemen with these connections, then we venture to suggest that he is a queer kind of a leader of a party alleged to be democratic in this country, if there is to be any line of demarcation between the two old parties which means anything.

We have examined Mr. Lyman's record and we have not found in it anything which indicates that he holds opinions different from the opinions which the average man with his financial connections holds in this country. Therefore, the Democratic party stands for nothing, or it has chosen a leader who personifies the interests that seek to dominate the country and do dominate it three-quarters of the time, and against whose domination the Democratic party must stand in Massachusetts or give way to a party which will. The women politicians who voted for Mr. Lyman have made a poor beginning indeed.

More Truth Than Poetry

A Woman Who Was Young

By S. E. KISER

HER manner seems a little sad;
Perhaps her thoughts have strayed away
To places where she once was glad,
For she had beauty in her day;
When dandies gave her praise, no doubt,
She tossed them frivolous replies;
But, wistful now, and fading out,
No sparkle lingers in her eyes.

HER hands are wrinkled now that were
So smooth and white; her neck is lean!
I watch her rocking in her chair,
Her gaze fixed on some distant scene;
Her hair, which once in ringlets hung,
Forms one poor knot as white as snow—
There was a time when she was young;
Perhaps she flirted, long ago!

SHE rises weakly, bent and small;
Her lips, once like twin buds, are drawn;
Her step is careful now, and all
The graces that she had are gone;
The lines are deep around her chin,
But when her Summers still were long
She may have been the heroine
Of some forgotten poet's song.

IN fancy I can see her now,
Possessed of all her youthful charms,
With lustrous ringlets on her brow,
And bracelets on her rounded arms;
I hear her laughter as she trips
Down rosy paths, her cheeks aglow,
Her fond hopes far at sea, on ships
That came to port long, long ago!

GRACE comes with age to men who make
Their impress on the young and bold,
But God has made a sad mistake
In causing women to grow old.

Mr. B. Baer

NO EXPERIENCE NECESSARY

A WESTERN State will establish a law to slip weekly wages to gents who don't work because they are lazy and to others who don't work for inferior reasons.

THE pay will be on an eight-hour-day basis. This compels the boys to loaf the other sixteen hours at a loss.

THE town loafer is liable to get sore, leave Moogenaville and go to a bigger town, where there is more loafing to do.

CAN you pipe one of the boys at 4 p. m.? Only two hours to loaf and the day's work is done. It will be awful when the loafing is slack and the men are forced to lay off. Give me the happy and contented employe who yawns at his work.

ONLY steady loafers will be benefited by the new law. The bum who watches the clock will be ostracized by the boys who put their whole hearts in their work.

GOING to make the lads sorer than a picked turkey when they are forced to wake up every hour to ring the time clock. Every workday will be a holiday because it's a workday. No man who snores will be allowed to work with the boys.

QUIET must be maintained in all shops. The workingman who wakes up suddenly is liable to wreck the machinery. Alarm clocks must be muffled within the city limits. Production must be speeded up.

WHEN discontented employes refuse to sleep on the job, strike-breakers will be imported. Daylight insomnia is a big item in overhead expense.

THE real reason why a town loafer doesn't work is because he is afraid that he might lose his job. Remove that fear and you have the worm in the core of the apple.

THE bill makes no provision for time-and-a-half for overtime, extra pay for loafing on Sundays and bonuses for wearing overalls at masquerade parties.

SHE WAS little.

AND BRIGHT eyes.
AND IT was evident.
FROM THE manner.
IN WHICH she walked.
AS SHE hurried along.
ON HER way to school.
THAT SHE had news.
OF SOME sort.
TO IMPART to someone.
AND JUST the same.
AS SOME grown folks.
SHE WOULDN'T tell it.
TO THIS little girl.
AND THAT little girl.
BUT WOULD save it.
UNTIL A time.
WHEN SHE could tell it.
TO THE whole bunch.
ALL AT once.
BECAUSE To her.
IT WAS big news.
AND SENSATIONAL.
AND SO.
OUR LITTLE heroine.
HURRIED ALONG.
ALMOST BURSTING.
AND REACHED school.

JUST TWO or three minutes,
AHEAD OF time.
AND IN her room.
WITH TWO other children.
AND HER teacher.
SHE RAISED her hand.
AND ATTRACTED the teacher.
AND SAID.
"PLEASE MISS Gibbons.
"WE HAVE a baby.
"AT OUR house.
"A LITTLE sister."
AND MISS Gibbons.
BEING A good teacher.
SAID WITH a smile.
"HOW VERY nice."
AS THE little girl added.
"DR. NELSON he brought it."
AND WITH that.
A SMALL boy.
BECAME EXCITED.
AND RAISED his hand.
AND SAID to the teacher.
"PLEASE MISS Gibbons.
"WE TAKE off's him, too."
AND THAT was all.

I THANK you.

Runyon

ON THE PASSING OF NIGHT LIFE

By Damon Runyon

Copyright, 1921, by Star Company

TWENTY—yes, ten—years from now we will not be troubled by the problem of keeping our youth in the small towns or even on the farms.

The reason is simple. Ten years from now all American towns will be exactly alike, save in point of size, and size alone never attracts the youth to the big cities.

It is the so-called gaiety and life that are supposed to go with the big cities, and this gaiety and life have commonly centred about the night, when electric signs blaze out and leisure walks abroad.

Now, then, night life is passing from the land. In fact, I may say it has passed. With it, as I think you will find, goes the attraction of the big cities that have in the past lured the youth from the small places.

The old magnet of opportunity, presented in the big cities, as nowhere else, will, of course, always exist, but only too many of our youth who have left the small towns have been drawn by something other than Opportunity.

The passing of night life, and by night life I mean life after midnight, has been due to Prohibition. Without liquor the night resorts cannot exist on the old scale. They can serve food, but there is not much profit in food, and by midnight the heartiest eater can gorge himself to suffocation.

Here and there throughout the country we find resorts still operating in a manner that is reminiscent of the old days. They cannot last, however, and the proprietors know it. Presently they will all have disappeared.

Without its old night life, a city the size of Chicago becomes at night the same as Pueblo, Colorado, or Galveston, Texas. That is to say, it is as quiet and uneventful. As in Pueblo, Colorado, or Galveston, Texas, the citizens go to their homes early, the streets become tranquil, and only those whose business keeps them out are to be seen.

This condition is being approached in Chicago right now, and in New York and Boston and San Francisco and all other big American cities. New York remains in spots one of the last glowing outposts of night revelry, but even there one by one the lights are dying out.

Chicago glittered bravely up to recently. One morning, after midnight, I stood in what was once the very centre of the night life of the town, and saw only a few belated pedestrians, and fairly felt the silence settling over the streets like a pall.

In outlying spots, difficult of access to the ordinary person, you can find in Chicago, as elsewhere, a form of the old gaiety, but it is only a form.

In future years young persons coming to the cities will quickly discover that they can have much more enjoyment by remaining in their home towns where they know everybody. They will find that there is no difference between Broadway and Commercial street from home, so far as life is concerned.

The size of the big city will be an inconvenience and a handicap to them rather than an attraction. In a small town it is easy for one to get to one's home; in a big town the home-going is attended with difficulties and discomforts.

Friends and acquaintances are not easy to make in the big city, and, once made, it is not always easy to look them up. In the small town you live in the same neighborhood with them.

There is no pleasure being cooped up in a room in a boarding house or hotel in a big city just for the sake of being in the big city, and, lacking its old attractions, the big city reverts to Commercial street, minus the neighborliness of Commercial street.

Not every youth comes to the big city on pleasure bent, of course, but I will venture to say that 50 per cent. of them were attracted in the past by the tinsel and the glare of the night life, which presently will be one with Nineveh and Tyre.

The Spectator

THE GUIDE TO HELL

THE Rev. Mr. Voliva, in charge of the church founded by Brother Dowie at Zion City, Ill., recently flourished forth in the contemporary press as announcing a Guide to Hell.

The fashion is old. From time immemorial peeved prophets have amazed the commons and furnished relief to their own feelings by having visions of hell, peopled mostly by those enemies they were unable to best in this vale of tears. They took it out on them in the next life.

Mr. Voliva follows the conventional plan of making each sinner stew in the juice of his own particular sin, and as the Zion brethren are peculiarly ferocious against those who sin by using tobacco, their leader and guide took especial glee in noting that smokers were to be everlastingly smothered in tobacco fumes and chewers drowned in roaring oceans of tobacco extract. And so on.

Far be it from us to dispute one who speaks from the sacred desk. But while we have no desire to cross swords with the theologians, we may be permitted to make a few observations upon the little spots on hell we see in this life and upon the causes thereof.

For there are certain things and thoughts that bring hell wherever they appear.

For instance.

One of the commonest of hell-makers is Envy. Envy is feeling miserable at another's success or happiness.

It may be called the last and deadliest of sins for against it is levelled the Tenth Commandment. "Thou shalt not covet!"

Wherever you find this sentiment you find a spot of utter wretchedness. It is entirely senseless, and purely diabolical.

For in the nature of human society it must always be that some are fairer, stronger, luckier and more favored than others.

All the trees in the forest cannot be the tallest, and any person that cannot be happy so long as he sees another excel him in any way is most certainly marked for trouble so long as he lives.

Another hell-maker is the Bad Habit.

Probably the most pitiful portion of the human race consists of those who in one way or another have lost their will-power before some tyrannous desire.

Whoever would describe the agonies of the sex pervert must have a pen more powerful than Dante's and an imagination that cannot be staggered by the most horrible facts of the tragedy of souls.

None of the pictures painted by orators or writers of the humiliation and distress of the victim of alcohol is satisfactory—not because they are too horrible, but because they are not lurid enough. The dipsomaniac, if he have any of the finer sensibilities left, dies a thousand deaths. He sees the torments not only of himself, but of all who touch his life in love or interest.

So it is with those wretched creatures who become victims of other drugs, opium, cocaine, heroin, chloral and the like. No artificial images of tortures upon the other side of the grave can exceed the real tortures they endure in dragging out this miserable existence.

It was a true as well as a sharp thing Elbert Hubbard said, that "we are not punished for our sins but by them."

And, unfortunately, the sufferings from evil are by no means confined to those who commit them. The worst phase is the misery they inflict upon those that find it in their hearts to love them.

There is vastly more sorrow outside of the penitentiary, among wives, mothers and lovers, than there is among the inmates.

Who can tell the vicarious agonies of mothers? Everyone else can let the abandoned wretch go to his punishment, and turn aside, but her heart can never cease to bleed for him so long as life lasts.

It is not a pleasant subject. Yet a guide to hell in this life might not be without its uses.

If only those who are taking the first steps in the primrose paths that lead to the valley of serpents could be made to see, to heed and to stop!

If the Reverend Mr. Voliva, and all other expounders of the Word, had the imagination and the eloquence to depict the actual living and devouring flames that consume and torture the men and women in this life, it might have better results than to paint in fanciful colors the horrors of a problematic future.
